INTRODUCTION

Little did I dream four years ago, when my daughter discovered Hudson's History of Lexington in the Forbes Library of Northampton, Mass., and handed me the book saying, "Daddy look at this wonderful book," that I'd be writing this introduction to a work of my own. Previous to this trip to the library, a cousin on my mother's side of the family had me slightly interested in genealogy, it was all new to me. But, very late that same evening when I came across my great grand-father's name, Benjamin Sweetzer Munroe, in the genealogical section of Hudson's work, I began to dream about how nice it would be if one could bring all this material up to date.

Now, after over four years of anticipation, this genealogy of the Monro, Monroe, Munro and Munroes of Lexington, Massachusetts has become a reality. Although the main effort has been to search out the male line, whenever information or knowledge of the female lines were offered, they were included.

No excuse is offered for errors that may be found as they are inherent in an undertaking of this nature. But, all information has been carefully checked to the best of my ability. To all our kinsmen, all that I ask is that this volume will be accepted with the good faith in which it was undertaken. My most sincere appreciation is extended to the many Munroes and Munroe descendants who have come forth with information that has helped to weave together these eleven generations. The main design of this effort is to preserve our family history for our posterity, recording facts known to-day, so that in the future they will not become clouded with tradition.

Many miles of travel have been spent in gathering information and records, vital statistic books have been carefully gleaned, histories of Massachusetts towns studied for clues and records, as well as those of other states; correspondence has been far reaching and rewarding.

While gathering the information for this memorial, to those past and present, and particularily to those of our family that have gone to that bourne of no return; has been likened to a travel through the pages of our American History, with our ancestors acting as guides.

Although we open our genealogy with our first ancestor in this country, William[1] Munroe, it must be clearly understood that we are not sure of his origin. Even though the statements made about him, such as the place of his birth, his arrival in this country, and his participation at the battle of Worcester, as they appear in this work, are some-what on the border of tradition. But of one thing we are sure, and that is he is our first American ancestor. Following this introduction is a letter from the Hon. Editor of the Clan Munro Magazine of Scotland. This letter will bear out that of which I have just spoken, in regard to William[1] Munroe.

In conclusion to my humble efforts, I say to you, let us be proud, and guided by our ancestry and family heritage, being ever mindful to be humble. We are judged by our own deeds, efforts and compassion and not by those of our forebears.

THE SCOTTISH DESCENT OF OUR FIRST AMERICAN ANCESTOR

(A Letter to the Compiler from the Hon. Editor, Clan Munro Magazine, October 1965)

It was perhaps rather rash of me to offer some comments on the Scottish descent of your first American ancestor, as a preface to the detailed study which you have been making of his descendants. But I have read all that I could lay hands on about the subject, in books published on both sides of the Atlantic, and in addition I have access to an unpublished manuscript (compiled in 1734) which is the foundation of most Munro genealogy in Scotland; and I believe it is worth setting down the facts as far as they are known, even if the evidence on some points is shown not to be as strong as we could have wished. In a case like this, too, I feel it is important that genealogists should realize just what part of the evidence is from American sources, and what from Scottish: otherwise we may confuse ourselves and each other by believing that facts established on one side are confirmed by independent sources on the other when in fact they are not.

Please do not get me wrong over this. I am no debunker of cherished beliefs, and I am all for strengthening the bonds of clanship throughout the world. That, in fact, is what our Clan Munro (Association), through nine issues of the Clan Munro Magazine and otherwise, has been trying to do for nearly thirty years. If this letter shakes some of the certainty about your family descent, that does not mean that our cousinship is in any way impaired, but simply that we must look elsewhere for proof of it, or be content with knowing that the link must be there even if its exact detail has been forgotten.

The key figure linking Scotland and America, for you and your many cousins, is of course William, ancestor of the Lexington Munroes, who first appears in America (I understand) as "William Row" in the town records of Cambridge, Mass., in 1657, and who died on 27 January 1717, aged 92. The basic information about him has been in print for more than a century: it was given by John G. Locke, member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, in his Book of the Lockes, reprinted in The Munroe Genealogy (Boston and Cambridge, 1853), pages 2 to 5, and by Charles Hudson in his History of the Town of Lexington (Boston, 1868), pages 147 to 148.

Regarding William's origin, several suppositions have been made, and they were apparently communicated by, or at any rate accepted in the family. Locke "supposed" him to have been one of the four Scottish prisoners named Munrow—Robert, John, Hugh, "and one other whose first name is obliterated by time"—who were recorded at Boston on 13 May 1652 as having been consigned to Thomas Kemble there from London on 11 November 1651 by John Reex, Robert Rich, and William Greene in the "John and Sara" (John Greene, master); these prisoners, Locke believed, were probably taken at the battle of Worcester, fought on 3 September 1651. Hudson also wrote that this prisoner was "supposed to be William, the ancestor of the Lexington Munroes," and he added that William was born in Scotland in 1625.

So much for American sources; and it will be noted that neither Locke nor Hudson gave any information about William's parentage. Now let us look at the matter from this side of the Atlantic.

Alexander MacKenzie (1838-98), an Inverness business man, journalist and publisher, produced as the last of a series on the Scottish clans a History of the Munros, which was published shortly after his death. Much of the genealogical matter is based on earlier (and partly unpublished) collections made by Major-General Alexander Stewart Allan (1822-81) and Alexander Ross (c. 1847-90), of whose work I wrote in the Clan Munro Magazine for 1955 (v. 14-16). Ross had some information about the American branches of the clan, and while his book was in preparation MacKenzie corresponded with James Phinney Munroe (1862-1929), of Boston, who—"with little time and still less experience in matters genealogical," as he admitted, but an acquaintance with Locke's and Hudson's books—secured the inclusion in the History of "as many of the American branches of the Munro Clan as the limited time before publication would permit us to follow up" (J. P. Munroe, A Sketch of of The Munro Clan, Boston 1900, p. 5).

MacKenzie was I believe the first writer to give William Munro (died 1717) a place in the family tree. According to his History (pp. 347, 559), Robert Munro of Aldie, near Tain in Ross-shire, who belonged to the Coul and Balconie family and was the fifth in descent from George Munro of Foulis (died 1452) by a younger son, married—his wife's name is not stated—and had four sons "all of whom fought in the battle of Worcester"—(1) Robert, (2) George, (3) William, "who was born in 1625, and fought in the battle of Worcester, was taken prisoner, and banished by Cromwell to Boston, Mass., along with several others", &c., (4) Sir Benedict, Baron of Meikle Dorfe in Germany, to which he escaped after Worcester, and where he subsequently settled; and a daughter, (5) Elizabeth.

In a preface written by his son, MacKenzie's indebtedness to Stewart Allan and Ross was acknowledged, rather inadequately. The author himself, in the body of the work (pp. 560-61), acknowledges Janes Phinney Munroe's help. In my own view it is quite clear that MacKenzie's acceptance of the fourth "Munrow" on the "John and Sara" as the Lexington family's ancestor William rests solely on Locke's genealogy quoted above. His Massachusetts collaborator repeated it with complete approval (Munro Clan, pp. 19, 21), and added that the brothers Robert, George, William and Benedict "came into the world between 1615 and 1630," although like MacKenzie he did not know their mother's name. He even accepted MacKenzie's published statement that William was born in 1625 as Scottish evidence supporting the identification, whereas I believe it is simply based on his age at death given by Locke and other U. S. sources.

Without MacKenzie's History, Munro genealogy would be much the poorer, but while paying tribute to his diligence it is well to appreciate his limitations. His work can be shown to contain errors attributable to the mis-copying or misconstruing of material, either by himself or others. One such error led him to believe the Munros of Kiltearn to be extinct in the male line, which was actually continued by a famous Irish family of Monroes who still flourish (MacKenzie, pp. 380-81; Horace Monroe, Foulis Castle and the Monroes of Lower Iveagh, pp. 5, 27, &c.; Who's Who; cf. 1734 MS., M/72; Calendar of Writs of Munro of Foulis, ed. McInnes, nos. 266, 311, 326; R.W.M. in Ross-shire Journal, 5 January 1951). His account of the Assynt family seems to be a confused version of the 1734 MS., but he does not explain (apart from a similarity of names, and the fact that one of them was at Worcester) why he identifies three of its members as the other prisoners on the "John and Sara" (MacKenzie, pp. 466, 560; 1734 MS., Q/38). And to take another American example, the suggested descent of President James Monroe from another banished clansman, Andrew Munro of the Katewell family (whose brother John was minister of Pomunkie Neck in Vigrinia), to which MacKenzie gave currency, has not stood up to closer examination (MacKenzie, pp. 480-81; 1734 MS. pedigree, Q/47-8; Clan Munro Magazine, vi. 14-17).

I have been working for some time on MacKenzie's sources, and I do not know any authority for his statement on the parentage of William, or that he and his brothers fought at Worcester. It is certainly not taken from the only earlier account of the Aldie family which I know—the unpublished MS pedigree compiled in 1734 and described in the Clan Munro Magazine for 1961 (vii. 39-41), on a copy of which most of MacKenzie's genealogical framework is obviously based. The writing in the original is not always easy to decipher, but the son of John Munro of Aldie appears as "Robert married at Nurremberge Daniel_____s daughter and had George William Benedict and (?) Eliza." The next entry is "Sir Benedict Baron of Meikle Dorfe in Germany": there is no word here of Robert as the eldest son (1734 MS., M/24-5).

Briefly, then, I would sum as follows regarding your first American ancestor:—It may now be impossible to find exact proof of the origin of William Munroe, who died in 1717 aged 92, but he was probably descended from the Munros of Foulis, Chiefs of the Clan in Scotland, and shipped to America as a political prisoner. He was supposed by John G. Locke, author of The Munro Genealogy (Boston, 1853), to be the Munrow whose Christian name is obliterated in the list of "servants" sent from London to Boston on Board the "John and Sara" at the end of 1651, soon after the battle of Worcester; and by Alexander MacKenzie, author of the History of the Munros (Inverness, 1898), to be the son of Robert Munro of Aldie, near Tain in Ross-shire, fifth in descent from George Munro of Foulis (died 1452). Nothing has been found to contradict these statements, but proof of them is at present lacking.

As James Phinney Munroe wrote (Munro Clan, p. 48):—"Since there is no doubt that old William Munro, of Lexington, was a Scotchman, and since, being so, he must have been of the Clan Munro, the question of his exact descent is really now of minor consequence. Even should it be disproved that he was one of the sons of Robert of Aldie, it would still be beyond dispute that he was a descendant, through one of the many lines, from some of the Barons of Foulis."

I am quite happy to leave the last word to one of your own branch, and to assure you and your innumerable cousins in the States that a warm welcome awaits any who manage to come over and visit the cradle of your race in Scotland.

A NOTE ON MUNROS AT THE BATTLE OF WORCESTER (1651)

It may be of interest to mention that at least two Munro officers were killed at Worcester, and several other clansmen are known to have fought in the battle. All were on the King's side, but the Clan does not seem to have acted as a unit in this campaign. The Chief, Sir Hector, was then a boy of 15, who was to die before the year was out; his cousin Sir George was a leading Royalist general, but the Tutor of Foulis was Sir George's elder brother, Colonel Robert Munro of Obsdale, who was "of different principles" and favored Cromwell's Commonwealth.

Some particulars of those at Worcester can be gathered together from various sources, of which the principle is the MS. pedigree of 1734. David Munro, Lieut.-Colonel in the Earl of Kellie's Regiment of Foot, who was a brother of Sir Alexander Monro of Bearcrofts, fell "in desperately retarding the pursuit after the King" (1734 MS., L/46; MacKenzie, p. 309; Prof. Alex. Monro's "Autobiography" in University of Edinburgh Journal, xvii. 80). The other officer killed was John Monro of Delny, Major in General Thomas Dalyell's Regiment of Foot (1734 MS., L/104; MacKenzie, p. 301, also says a cousin Hugh was "supposed to have fought at the battle of Worcester," p. 300).

Major Hector Monro of Coul, who had been in the German wars under Gustavus Adolphus and was wounded at Oldenburg in 1627, intended to march with the expedition gathering in April 1651 and may have done so (1734 MS., M/44; MacKenzie, pp. 385, 386; R. Munro's Expedition, i 18, 23; Inverness and Dingwall Presbytery Records, p. 210). John of the Assynt branch, "went to the Armie to Worcester 1651" (1734 MS., Q/41; MacKenzie, p. 466, says also brother Hugh and uncle Robert); Hector, of the Kilmorack branch "was sent from Worcester to Barbadoes" (1734 MS., L/113; MacKenzie, p. 291).

The compiler of the 1734 pedigree, it will be seen, knew about most of the Munros whose names have survived as participants at Worcester; but he includes no William among them, and has nothing to say of the son of Robert Aldie who bore that name.

EXPLANATION OF THE NUMBERING SYSTEM USED IN THIS BOOK

In the following explanation the lineage of the compiler's daughter will be used as an example. Her family number is, 14-19-32-42-11, Lee Parker Munroe. Birth, marriage, death dates and all other vital statistics are left out in this explanation for expediency.

Starting with William[1] Munroe, his family number is "1" shown before his name in generation one. His children were: 1 John, 2 Martha, 3 William, 4 George, 5 Daniel, 6 Hannah, 7 Elizabeth, 8 Mary, 9 David, 10 Eleanor, 11 Sarah, 12 Joseph, 13 Benjamin, 14 Susanna.

The next ancestor is George[2] Munroe, in italics above, he is the fourth child of William[1] Munroe, so George's family number becomes 14. The digit one for his father William, and the digit four because George is William's fourth child. George[2] Munroe is found in generations one and two, with the number 14 before his name. His children were: 1 William, 2 Sarah, 3 Dorothy, 4 Lydia, 5 George, 6 Robert, 7 Samuel, 8 Andrew, 9 Lucy.

Now then the next ancestor is William[3] Munroe, in italics above, he is the first child of George[2] Munroe, so William's family number becomes 14-1. The number 14 for his father George, and the digit one because William is the first child of George. It should be noted right here that after every pair of digits a hyphen is used, the reason for this will be explained later. William[3] Munroe is found in generations two and three, with the number 14-1 before his name. His children were: 1 James, 2 Isaac, 3 Asa, 4 Rebecca, 5 Lydia, 6 Amos, 7 Mary, 8 Hannah, 9 Philemon, 10 William.

This brings forth the next ancestor Philemon[4] Munroe, in italics above, he is the ninth child of William[3] Munroe, so Philemon's family number becomes 14-19. The number 14-1 for his father William, and the digit nine because Philemon is the ninth child of William. Philemon[4] Munroe is found in generations three and four, with the number 14-19 before his name.

In the explanation thus far we have italicized the ancestors of Lee Parker Munroe, and will continue on in like manner to her place in this genealogy. As you now follow each step it should be self-explanatory.

The children of Philemon[4] Munroe were: 1 Thomas, 2 Elizabeth, 3 Edwin, 4 Josiah, 5 Catherine, 6 Parnel, 7 Charles, 8 Harrison Gray Otis.

Edwin[5] Munroe family number 14-19-3. His children were: 1 Edwin, 2 Benjamin Sweetzer, 3 Eliza Ann, 4 Martha Fowle, 5 Henry Fowle, 6 Emeline Reed, 7 Henry Fowle, 8 Faustina. Edwin[5] Munroe is found in generations four and five.

Benjamin[6] Sweetzer Munroe family number 14-19-32. His children were: 1 Hannah Annette, 2 Annie Sargent, 3 George Arthur, 4 Herbert Sweetzer. Benjamin[6] Sweetzer Munroe is found in generations five and six.

Herbert[7] Sweetzer Munroe family number 14-19-32-4. His children were: 1 Edith Frances, 2 Herbert Chester. Herbert[7] Sweetzer Munroe is found in generations six and seven.

Herbert[8] Chester Munroe family number 14-19-32-42. His child is: 1 Richard Stanley Munroe. Herbert[8] Chester Munroe is found in generations seven and eight.

Richard[9] Stanley Munroe family number 14-19-32-42-1. His child is: 1 Lee[10] Parker Munroe. Richard[9] Stanley Munroe is found in generations eight and nine.

Lee[10] Parker Munroe family number 14-19-32-42-11. Lee[10] Parker Munroe is found in generation nine.

The reason for the hyphen between each pair of digits is explained as follows. William[1] Munroe had 14 children, if we want to express the number for his twelfth child Joseph, and wrote it thusly 112, it would have three digits, one, one and two. Now lets express it in this manner 1/12, the slash line indicating that any two digit number to its left or right is to be considered as a digit, hence the 12 at the right of the slash line is considered a digit, like the numbers one to nine. Now then we need the hyphen between each pair of digits, so that a number such as this can be distinguished, 1/12-41-11/, this number represents five generations, each digit represents a generation, in this example the number 12 at the right of the slash line counts as a single digit and the number 11 at the left of the second slash line counts as a single digit in like manner, hence this number has five digits, one for each generation. The fourth generation of this number is 1/12-41, the third generation is 1/12-4 and the second generation 1/12. These numbers can be found in this book, 1/12 Joseph2 Munroe is found in generations one and two, 1/12-4 Joshua Munroe is found in generations two and three, 1/12-41 Thaddeus Munroe is found in generations three and four, 1/12-41-11/ Jeptha Munroe is found in generations four and five.

1 WILLIAM MUNROE

[WILLIAM MUNROE is referred to in the Cambridge records in 1657, when he and Thomas Rose were fined for not having rings in the noses of their swine. He was the first of the Munroes in Lexington, Massachusetts.

William, with several of his relatives, was taken prisoner by Cromwell in the battle of Worcester and banished to Boston, Massachusetts along with several others. They were shipped from London on 11 November, 1651, by Jo. Reex, Robert Rich, and William Greene, in the "John and Sarah," John Greene, master, and consigned to Mr. Thomas Kemble of Boston. Those banished and listed on board this vessel were recorded on 13 May, 1652, the list contains four of the name Munroe, viz.: Robert, John, Hugh, and one other whose first name is obliterated by time. This name is supposed to have been William, the undoubted progenitor of the family of the Munroes of Lexington, Massachusetts.

A curious note about these Munroes, being banished from their native land for fighting in the King's interest, Charles I, is that their descendants were the first to make a stand and fire the first shot on the morning of 19 April, 1775 in the American Revolution.

If William was sold as an apprentice when he first arrived here, it must have been rather short for those days, because he must have been his own man about 1657. Around 1660 he settled in the northeasterly part of Cambridge Farms, now known as Lexington, near the Woburn line. In those days this part of the town was called "Scotland." He was made freeman in 1690 and on 1 February, 1699 was received into Communion of the church. In 1694 he was a selectman of Cambridge and later his name appears in connection with several other important parish offices. In his will, dated 14 November, 1716, he mentions his sons, John, William, George, Daniel, Joseph and Benjamin, and daughters Eleanor Burgess, to whom he gave the sole use of his house, Martha Comee, Hannah Pierce, Elizabeth Rugg, and Mary Fassett.

At first, several of his sons lived with him or not far from him, and it was said by his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Sanderson, who died in 1853, aged 104 years, that his old house looked like a rope walk, so many additions had been made to it to accommodate his sons, as they settled in life. By adopting the custom of the Scottish clans, he, in a sense, confined the Munroes together, and made them for some time, a distinct people.

William's first wife, Martha George, was the daughter of John George of Charlestown, a prominent Baptist, who was fined, imprisoned, and finally ordered out of town for heresy.]

GENERATION 2

11 JOHN MUNROE

[JOHN MUNROE was admitted to the church 1 February 1699, together with his father, and sisters Martha Commee, Elizabeth Rugg and Hannah Pierce. He was a subscriber for the meeting-house in 1692, and was taxed for the purchase of ministerial land in 1693. He was one of the assessors in 1699, 1714 and 1720; constable in 1700, selectman in 1718, 1719 and 1726; also treasurer in 1718, 1719 and 1720. He was employed several years to ring the bell and sweep out the meeting-house, which shows that he did not consider it derogatory to perform any honest labor. He also illustrated the truth of the old ballad, that "there are sweepers in high life as well as in low;" for in addition to sweeping the meeting-house, he filled most of the important offices in the town.

In consequence of the number of Munroes in Lexington, and the repetition of the names William, John, George, Mary, Hannah and Sarah it was difficult to distinguish between them; this difficulty was felt by them and their contemporaries so they used certain other designations. A specimen is shown in the following couplet, preserved by one of the descendants.

"Lieutenant John and Ensign Roe, Sergeant George and Corporal Joe."

From the above titles it can be seen that the family, true to their instincts, were given to the military, and that John was honored with the office of Lieutenant. John Munroe along with others had nine hundred acres of land granted to them in 1735, for services rendered in the Indian fight at Lamprey River, 6 June 1690.]

In the History of Cambridge, Mass. 1630 to 1877, by Lucius R. Paige, on page 613, Mr. Paige says, "I suspect that John the father had two wives; and that the second, married probably in 1700 was Hannah, daughter of John Marrett, whose first husband, Samuel Hastings, Jr., d. 28 Sept. 1699."

The compiler of this Genealogy of the Munroes of Lexington has good reason to believe that Hannah was John Munroe's first wife, for the following reasons.

[In the book of Lexington Epitaphs by Francis H. Brown, M.D. published by the Lexington Historical Society in 1905, on page 85, is the epitaph of Hannah Munroo and reads as follows: Here lyes the body of Hannah Munroo wife to John Munroo aged 42 years 4 months and 19 days died April ye 14th 1716.]

The first child of John Munroe and his wife was John, bap. 1 Jan. 1698/99 and the last child Marrett was b. 6 Dec. 1713; this shows that all ten of John the father's children were born in the life span of Hannah Munroo, who d. 14 April 1716, the vital records of Lexington also show this death date for Hannah. The History of Cambridge, by Paige, page 482, shows her birth to be 17 Aug. 1668. There is a five year discrepancy of her age on her grave stone but this was possibly an error, actually she was 47 years 7 months and 27 days old at the time of her death.

The second wife must have been Rachel without any doubt, because of a conveyance from Rachel Munroe to her daughter-in-law Deliverance Munroe. In October 1964, Mrs. Carroll M. Johnson of Antrim, N. H., (family no. 11-10/5-63-12-3) loaned me this will dated, 18 August 1737. This conveyance mentions in part, "unto my beloved daughter in law Deliverance Munroe the wife of Marrett Munroe, etc." Since this is dated in 1737, Rachel must have been the second wife of John Munroe. Lexington, vital records show Rachel d. 29 May 1741.

Hence Mr. Paige was right that John Munroe the father had two wives, but the first was Hannah and the second Rachel. Another strong point in this favor is the first daughter was named Hannah and the last child was named Marrett.

Here follows the conveyance of Rachel Munroe to Deliverance Munroe:

Rachel Munroe

Conveyance to

Deliverance Munroe

"To all people to whom these presents shall come greetings

Know yee that whereas John Munroe of Lexington in the County of Middlesex and the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England Govt. hath by a certain instrument bearing date January 7th 1734/5 among other things given unto Rachel his wife the whole of her goods and chattel she brought with her at her marriage to him, to be by her taken into possession at his decease that in such of them as are then in being and in case the said Rachel deceases first he have given power to her heirs or assigns to demand and recover the same. Now I the said Rachel Munroe do as these presents give consent convey and confirm the same the whole thereof, bed and bedding, chests, chairs, tabby, glasses, milk vessels, both wooden and earthen and any other particular not mentioned, excepting a finale brass kettle which I reserve for my daughter Butterfield, unto my Beloved Daughter in Law Deliverance Munroe the wife of Marrett Munroe in case that she recovers to health after the birth of her first child and survives me, to be by her taken into possession immediately at my said husbands and my decease, and to be at her own disposal forever but in case she could not survive the birth of her first child, or should decease before me, then this conveyance is to become void—. But upon no other condition shall it be lawfull for any other person what ever to hinder her, her heirs or assigns from taking the same at the time above mentioned, and peacibly possessing or dispossessing, of them. In witness whereof I the said Rachel Munroe have here unto putt my hand and seal this 18th of August AD:1737 and in the eleventh year of his Majesty's Reign."

19 DAVID MUNROE

The following account is taken from the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. C, 1946.

David Munroe, b. in Cambridge Farms, now Lexington, Mass., 6 Oct. 1680, d. in Canterbury, Windham County, Conn., 19 June 1755. He m. Deborah How, b. 19 Oct. 1685, d. in Canterbury 1 Sept. 1748, dau. of Samuel and Mary (Nutting) How of Concord, Mass.

The Lexington records mention only the birth of David Munroe, but Conn. was then being settled by emigrants from the colonies of Plymouth and Mass. Bay, and in April 1705 he and his wife are found in Canterbury, when their first child was born.

The town of Canterbury contained but ten families when it was endowed with town privileges in 1703. In 1714 Samuel Adams and Obadiah Johnson conveyed a farm of 136 acres to David Munroe, by deed recorded in Canterbury. In 1722 David and Deborah joined the church in Canterbury. In 1723 a division of common lands was made among those residents of Canterbury "who were settled inhabitants and paid to ye building of ye meeting-house and minister's home" which were completed in 1711. In this allotment David received one and one-half shares. In 1743 a controversy arose among the members of the Canterbury church over a sermon by its minister which did not meet the views of many of them. A committee recommended the minister's dismissal, David and five others made written protest against the committee's report, severely criticising its motives. The committee retaliated by recommending that David and his associates be expelled from the church. The matter was finally settled by dismissal of the minister, with David and the other protestants remaining in the Church.

The identity of David Munroe of Canterbury as the son of William Munroe of Cambridge Farms was questioned by one writer upon the ground that not being mentioned in William's will it indicated that David probably died young. Later, however, Rev. Mr. Northrup and Dr. Will S. Munroe, author and prominent educator, for many years professor of psychology in Montclair, N. J., State Normal School, in their preparation of the "Genealogy of Josiah Munroe," after much careful research became convinced, and so stated in their publication, that David of Canterbury was, without doubt, the son of William of Cambridge Farms.

Their conclusions were based upon the following, among other circumstances: David, appearing as he did, among the early settlers of Canterbury, must have emigrated there from some other place, but the records of emigrants to New England prior to that time and the published vital statistics of Mass., Rhode Island and Conn. disclosed no one bearing that name who could have been identified with him other than William's son David; between the time of his baptism in Lexington in 1699 and the birth of his first child in Canterbury in 1705, he was of the age when one might expect him to marry and establish a home in a new community; there was a family tradition that he came from Cambridge; his grandson, John Munroe, who lived and died in Canterbury, left a written family record which passed to John's granddaughter, Mary Munroe Collins, who retained it until it was destroyed by a fire which burned the Collins home in 1890, but she well remembered its contents which told of the coming of William from Scotland to Mass. and the settlement of his son, David, in Canterbury, all of which she related to Doctor Monroe when he visited Canterbury in 1912 collecting material for their work. Moreover, it appeared that four of David's seven daughters, viz., Mary, Eleanor, Elizabeth and Sarah bore the given names of four of his sisters; and of his four sons, one William, bore the name of his grandfather and his uncle. It would be quite unreasonable to presume that such a coincidence of names would occur except in immediately related families. In addition to all this Mrs. Collins told Doctor Monroe, and after her death, her son informed him of this sketch that his mother had told him that David's wife came from Concord, Mass. A search of the Concord vital records disclosed only one woman named Deborah, born there of marriageable age for David, viz., Deborah How, daughter of Samuel and Mary How. Upon further search it was found that Samuel How had joined the tide of emigration to Conn. According to the "Howe Genealogies" published by the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, he resided in Concord until shortly after 1700 when he moved to Plainfield, a new town in Windham County, Conn. It is also there stated that his daughter Deborah married David Monroe and the Probate Records of Plainfield, where he died, show that David Monroe in 1725 receipted for his wife's share of Samuel How's estate. The same records show the distribution of the estate of Mary How who died in 1727 and refer to Deborah Monroe as her daughter.

If David Munroe had died in Lexington, his death would have been recorded in the vital statistics of that town and his remains would have rested in the family burying ground with a tombstone marking his grave as do those of his mother and father. The absence of these is further corroborative proof of the correctness of Rev. Mr. Northrup's conclusion as to the identity of David Munroe of Canterbury as William's son of that name. In 1913 the Lexington Historical Society published a revised edition of Hudson's "History of Lexington" in which David Munroe was shown as a son of William. The correction relating to him, appearing in Vol. II, after the index at page 6 of Additions and Corrections, read as follows: "Before Joseph no. 6 on page 461 insert; David[2] Munroe (William[1]) b. 6 Oct. 1680; d. 19 June 1755. He removed to Canterbury, Conn. and bought land 22 Feb. 1715. In 1723, received 1½ shares of land, as one who paid towards the meeting-house and minister's house, which were conpleted in 1711. His will was probated 8 Sept. 1755."

13-8 PHILIP MUNROE

The History of Surry, N. H., 1769 to 1922 by Frank Burnside Kingsbury, shows Philip3 Munroe and mentions that he m. Abigail _____, that they are both buried in Surry and had the following children: Philip, b. about 1753, Isaac, b. 1767, Abel, b. 1775, Sally, b. about 1778 and Jonas; also that there were probably others.

The first four children of Philip3 and his first wife Mary and his mother Johanna had all died by 23 Dec. 1749, as can be seen in Hudson's History of Lexington, Mass. and the Lexington vital records, the children were, Mary, Lois, Johanna and Prudence; at this time Philip3 was 31 years old. He must have married his second wife, Abigail, between 1749 and 1753. From the 35th to 60th year of his age, 11 more children were born to him and Abigail, she was about 22 when the first was born and 47 at the birth of their last child.

In communication with Mr. Hiram Harlow an historian of Shrewsbury, in 1963, to gain more information about Philip3 Munroe and his family. Mr. Hiram Harlow furnished the following information establishing Philip3 Munroe of Lexington, Shrewsbury and Surry N.H. as one and the same person.

Philip3 was of Shrewsbury, Boylston and Rutland, Mass. had a son Philip4 Munroe, Jr. The first Shrewsbury deeds call Philip3 Munro of Lexington, Mass. a little later he was called of Shrewsbury. There are 18 land transfers of places that he bought and sold, he lived on one of the places called the 'Roe farm, which was still standing in 1963.

He was living on the "Hill" in what is now Boylston and in his time was Shrewsbury North Precinct. Two of his children were baptised in the church of the North Precinct or Second Parish, Isaac and Jacob on the same day, 2 Nov. 1769. Philip[3] Munroe started acquiring land in Shrewsbury Area about 1763, he sold 5 acres to Jonathan Weelock in Shrewsbury in 1763, and in 1765 he purchased a piece of land from Benjamin Tainter. In the deeds he is called "Philip Munro a labourer." To-day he would be called a land speculator. Most of the deeds call him of Shrewsbury, two call him of Rutland. Two deeds establish his connection to Surry, N.H., they were to Philip[4] Munro of Surry, in the county of Cheshire in N.H.; Philip[4] Munro is called a physician, the first deed is dated 22 Dec. 1789 and the second 29 Dec. 1789 and these pieces he sold to his son for what he paid for them. The last two deeds of Philip[3] Munroe were to Philip Munro, Jun., book 107 page 531 and book 108 page 246.

Dr. Philip[4] Munro sold one the following year to Johnathan Smith 1790, Philip[4] Munro, Jr. had established himself of Surry, N.H. about 1783.

The above information shows that both Dr. Philip[4] and Dr. Isaac[4] Munro were both sons of Philip[3] Munroe; and the Philip[3] of Surry, N.H. is The Philip[3] of Lexington & Shrewsbury, Mass.

14-6 ROBERT MUNROE

[Robert Munroe was a soldier in the French War, was the standard bearer at the taking of Louisburg, in 1758, he was also in the service in 1762. Having served the colonies against the French and Indians, it is natural to expect that he would be true to the family instinct, and the call of patriotism to defend the colonies against any other enemy. And so he was. He was the ensign of Captain Parker's company, and was on the Common on the 19th of April 1775, and stood at his post; and fell, one of the first victims of British oppression, on the very field where he was posted by his gallant commander. He was 64 years old at the time of his death.]

11-55 BRIDGET (MUNROE) MAXWELL

b. 27 Apr. 1735 at Lexington, Mass.
d. Heath, Mass.
m. Hugh Maxwell of Bedford, Mass. on 4 Nov. 1760. She was also of Bedford at the time of their marriage.
b. 27 Apr. 1733 at Minterburn, Tyrone County, Ireland. He was the s. of Hugh and Sarah Corbet Maxwell and a descendant in the fourteenth generation of Robert Maxwell of Selkirk, 1355.
d. 14/15 Oct. 1799 buried at sea.

Hugh Maxwell (Colonel) and his two brothers and four sisters were brought up by their mother and had no advantages of school when they were young. Their father having died suddenly in 1759, his body was found in the road supposed to have been killed by falling from his horse. Their mother with only her Bible and some other religious books taught them the elements of knowledge that prepared them for usefulness and respectability, some of them occupying positions of trust.

Colonel Hugh was an ardent lover of his country, his first public service was in the French War which broke out in 1755. He was in the battle near Lake George in 1755 and in Fort William Henry when it was surrendered to the French in 1756. As one of the prisoners of the Indians, who caught him, and stripped him of everything except his pantaloons, slipped from their capture, seized a gun, and ran for his life toward Fort Edward, which he reached in safety. Gov. Pownal of Mass. appointed him an Ensign in Brigadier Ruggle's Regiment on 31 Mar. 1759.

He had spent a few weeks in school to learn the surveyor's art so at the close of the war in 1759, he returned home to take up his plough and surveyor's instruments.

In 1773 he moved to Charlemont, Hampshire County, Mass., but by the division of both town and county it is now Heath, Franklin County.

He was elected a member to the first Provincial Congress which convened at Salem, 7 Oct. 1774. When he came home he assisted in raising an army and Oliver Avery was chosen Captain and Hugh Maxwell Lieutenant. Made Captain in the regiment of Colonel Wm. Prescott at Cambridge 26 May 1775. Was wounded at Bunker Hill on 17 June 1775, a ball passed through his right shoulder. He was in the operations of Long Island in the vicinity of New York, in Aug. and Sept. 1776, and was in the battle of Trenton and Princeton and Germantown. His brigade was sent north in 1777 to resist the advance of Burgoyne, he also saw service at Stillwater and Saratoga.

Having joined the southern army in November he shared the hardships of Valley Forge, was at the battle of Monmouth in June 1778. In 1779 was appointed to the rank of Major, and placed under the command of Major General William Heath, with whom he remained for three years. In Aug. 1783 he received a commission as Lieutenant Colonel in the Mass. line to take rank 12 Oct. 1782, this rank he held to the close of the war.

He was next honored as a member of the Society of the Cincinnati and this document given to him was signed by H. Knox Sec. and G. Washington, President.

Leaving home on the 29th of Dec. 1794 he went to Philadelphia to make a personal application to Congress for a pension as an invalid, but it came to no avail and he returned home with a pocket emptied by the expense of the trip.

Feeling that if he could raise a few hundred dollars it would greatly help in his declining years, he struck upon a new plan. He bought some horses, left home in July 1799 and sailed from Hartford for the West Indies. He had a good and prosperous voyage and just three days before his vessel was to arrive in port, homeward bound, he was taken with a fever on 14 Oct., died and was buried at sea.

11-86 EBENEZER MUNROE

[He was a member of the Lexington minute men, ready to do battle on the 19th of April in freedom's cause. He was wounded in the elbow in the morning, but mounted his horse riding from town to town, alarming the people and rousing them into action, until too exhausted by the loss of blood. He claimed to have fired the first gun on the American side. The testimony of others proved that he did return the fire. He performed other duties in the Revolution, being one of those who joined the campaign in the Jersey's in 1776.

At the close of the war he moved to Ashburnham, Mass., where he was a lieutenant and a respectable citizen. His widow married John Adams, as his second wife. Ebenezer Munroe was half brother to Mr. Adams' first wife.

Mr. Adams spent his youth in West Cambridge, went to Ashburnham previous to the Revolution, lived there until he was nearly 100, he then went to live with a son in Penna., and died there in 1849, aged 104 years, 1 month and 5 days. He retained his faculties to the last, and it is said that he made a pair of shoes the day he was 104.

Here follows the deposition of Ebenezer Munroe, made 2 April 1825:

I, Ebenezer Munroe, of Ashburnham, in the county of Worcester and the commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the seventy-third year of my age, on oath depose and say, that I was an inhabitant of Lexington in the county of Middlesex in the year 1775; that, during the night of the 18th of April of that year, I was alarmed by one Micah Nagles, who stated that the British troops were on their march from Boston, and that Lieutenant Tidd requested myself and others to meet on the common as soon as possible. I accordingly repaired to the common, the usual place of parade, where I found Captain Parker, and, I should think, about forty of the company had collected. The weather being rather chilly, after calling the roll, we were dismissed, but ordered to remain within call of the drum. The men generally went into the tavern adjoining the common. In the mean time, persons were sent towards Boston to get some intelligence, if possible, of the regulars. The last person sent was Thaddeus Bowman, who returned between day-light and sun-rise, and informed Captain Parker, that the British troops were within a mile of the meeting-house. Captain Parker immediately ordered the drum beat to arms. I was the first that followed the drum. I took my station on the right of our line, which was formed from six to ten rods back of the meeting-house, facing south. About seventy of our company had assembled when the British troops appeared. Some of our men went into the meeting-house, where the town's powder was kept, for the purpose of replenishing their stock of ammunition. When the regulars arrived within eighty or one hundred rods, they hearing our drum beat, halted, charged their guns, and doubled their ranks, and marched up at quick step. Captain Parker ordered his men to stand their ground, and not to molest the regulars, unless they meddled with us. The British troops came up directly in our front. The commanding officer advanced within a few rods of us, and exclaimed, "Disperse, you damned rebels! you dogs, run! Rush on my boys!" and fired his pistol. The fire from their front ranks soon followed. After the first fire, I received a wound in my arm, and then, as I turned to run, I discharged my gun into the main body of the enemy. As I fired, my face being toward them, one ball cut off a part of my ear locks, which was then pinned up. Another ball passed between my arm and body, and just marked my clothes. The first fire of the British was regular; after that, they fired promiscuously. As we retreated one of our company, Benjamin Sampson, I believe, who was running with me, turned his piece and fired. When I fired, I perfectly well recollect taking aim at the regulars. The smoke, however, prevented my being able to see many of them. The balls flew so thick, I thought there was no chance for escape, and that I might as well fire my gun as stand still and do nothing. I am confident, that it was the determination of most of our company, in case they were fired upon, to return fire. I did not hear Captain Parker's orders to his company to disperse. When the British came up in front of the meeting-house, Joshua Simonds was in the upper gallery, an open cask of powder standing near him, and he afterward told me, that he cocked his gun and placed the muzzle of it close to the cask of powder, and determined to "touch it off," in case the troops had come into the gallery. After our company had all dispersed, and the British troops had done firing, they gave three cheers. After they had marched off for Concord, we took two prisoners, who were considerably in the rear of the main body. I carried their arms into Buckman's tavern, and they were taken by some of our men, who had none of their own. I believed at the time, that some of our shots must have done execution. I was afterward confirmed in this opinion, by the observations of some prisoners, whom we took in the afternoon, who stated, that one of their soldiers was wounded in the thigh, and that another received a shot through his hand.

11-10/5 NATHAN MUNROE

[He was a member of Captain Parker's minute men, and took part in the battle of Lexington in 1775. He lived on Monument Street, his house received several balls, which were taken out subsequently, when the house was repaired.] A chest of drawers in Nathan's house was hit by a stray ball which penetrated the front panel of the third drawer down, from the top of the chest. It pierced the panel a bit to the right of the center and tore out a large section of the wood on the inside of the drawer. This chest is still in possession of one of the family in 1964, with the bullet hole still remaining.

Here follows the deposition of Nathan Munroe, made 22 December 1824.

[I, Nathan Munroe, in the county of Middlesex and state of Massachusetts, do testify and say, that I was enrolled as a soldier in the company commanded by Captain Parker of said Lexington, in the year 1775; and, knowing that several British officers went up the road towards Concord in the evening of the 18th of April of said year, I, with Benjamin Tidd, at the request of my captain, went to Bedford in the evening, and notified the inhabitants through the town, to the great road at Merriam's Corner, so called, in Concord, and then returned to Lexington. When arrived at the common, the bell was ringing, and the company collecting. I immediately got my arms and went to the parade. Captain Parker gave orders to us to load our guns, but not to fire, unless we were fired upon first. About five o'clock in the morning, the British made their appearance at the east end of the meeting-house, near where our men were, and immediately commenced firing on us. I got over the wall into Buckman's land, about six rods from the British, and then turned and fired at them. About the middle of the forenoon, Captain Parker, having collected part of his company, marched them towards Concord, I being with them. We met the regulars in the bounds of Lincoln, about noon, retreating towards Boston. We fired on them, and continued to to do until they met their reinforcement in Lexington.

13-31 EDMUND MUNROE

[Edmund Munroe's wife, Rebecca Harrington, was the sister of Jonathan Harrington, who d. 1854, the last survivor of the battle of Lexington. Edmund Munroe was distinguished as a military man. Entering the provincial service at an early age, promoted to an ensign in a corps of Major Rogers rangers, and saw service in the French War. He was acting adjutant in Colonel Hoar's regiment at Crown Point in 1761, receivied a commission from Governor Bernard in 1762, as a lieutenant in His Majesty's service, he continued with the troops at Crown Point, Ticonderoga, and vicinity, until the peace of 1763. His kinsmen Robert and Abraham were officers in the same service with him. Besides serving in the French and Indian war, he was enrolled in the company of the Lexington minute men and was with them on the 19th of April. He further served in the Revolution under Rogers and Hoar. Commissioned lieutenant 12 July 1776 in Captain Mile's company and Colonel Reed's regiment. The 16th of the same month he was made quartermaster and destined to the northern frontier. In a letter to his wife, of 5 Aug. 1776 from Charlestown, N. H., he says, "I have been used very well by the field officers of the regiment. We shall march from this place for Ticonderoga this day."

The first of January 1777, he received his commission of Captain in Colonel Bigelow's regiment. He was in the northern army under Gates, at Stillwater, Saratoga and Benington; and so distinguished himself that after the capture of Burgoyne he was presented by his superior officers a pair of candle-sticks, that were part of General Burgoyne's traveling equipment or tent ornaments.

After the capture of Burgoyne, Captain Munroe went to the Jerseys, and joined the army under Washington, where, on 28 June 1778 he was slain on the field of Freehold, more commonly called the Battle of Monmouth. The same cannon ball that killed him also took the life of his kinsman George Munroe, and maimed Joseph Cox of Lexington for the rest of his life. The candle-sticks mentioned above, a sword, a curious beaded Indian powder horn, several bead belts, pistols and so forth used by Captain Munroe in the French war, were left by his widow, in 1834 to her son Edmund.

Fifteen men from Lexington were in his company in the continental line, they were: Nehemiah Estabrook, David Fiske, Pomp Blackman, Samuel Crafts, Jupiter Tree, Thaddeus Munroe, Amos Russell, George Munroe, Joseph Cox, David Simonds, Ebenezer Hadley, James Fowle, Thomas Hadley, Levi Mead and Seth Read.

One of his original papers left in the family is the oath of office, bearing his signature and that of Baron de Kalb. It reads as follows:

I, Edmund Munroe, Captain in Colonel Bigelow's regiment, do acknowledge the United States of America to be free, Independent, and Sovereign States, and declare that the people thereof owe no allegiance to George, the Third, King of Great Britain; and I renounce and abjure any allegiance or obedience to him; and I do swear that I will to the utmost of my power support, maintain, and defend the said United States against the said King George the Third, his heirs and successors, and his or their abettors, assistants, and adherents; and will serve the said United States in the office of Captain, which I now hold, with fidelity, according to the best of my ability, skill and understanding.

Valley Forge, 18 May 1778.

(signed) The Baron de Kalb
Major General

Captain Munroe was very brave, without enthusiasm. Some of his letters show this coolness. In a letter to his wife from Valley Forge, 17 May 1778, he says, "I am going on command to-morrow morning down to the enemy's lines. There are two thousand going on the command. I am of the mind, we will have a dispute with them before we return." At the time of his death he was forty-two years old. Like most of the men of his day who devoted themselves to public service, he was comparatively poor. He left a widow and four children, the oldest child nine years old and the youngest three. His widow moved to West Cambridge, where she died 6 April 1834, aged 83.

Honorable mention was made of her in an obituary notice, in the Boston Daily Advertiser of 11 April 1834, a part of which reads as follows: "The worthy lady who is the subject of this notice, with other families in Lexington, fled on the 19th of April, 1775, with their children, to the woods, while their husbands were engaged with the enemy, and their houses were sacked or involved in flames. Her husband was killed at Monmouth in New Jersey, 28 June 1778. On his bereaved partner, in the midst of discouragement, sorrows, and the privations of the times, devolved the task of rearing an infant family. The long life of this venerable lady was a pattern of domestic duties and virtue."]

"The following letter is in the possession of Mrs. Oscar J. Raeder, family no. 13-31-51-63-1, as of 4 Dec. 1964."

Ticonderoga 20th Nov. 1776

My dear,

I received one letter from you this day & one yesterday. I rejoyce to hear of your welfare. I am glad to hear you have the harvesting so near done. I am under great obligation to you & hope to make you full satisfaction for all your trouble.

I am sorry to hear that you have lost a cow but misfortunes will happen. I don't doubt but you took as much care of her as I could myself. I received a letter yesterday from Brother Nehemiah. He informs me of your conduct which makes me believe that you are one of the best of wives.

We are ordered to march tomorrow by the way of Albany. We expect to be at home in about twelve days from this time. If you could send a horse to meet me I should be glad. We expect to march the post road from Albany to Boston. If you send him as far as Worcester it will be a great help to me. Hire some boy to take him to Sterns Tavern & if I don't meet him leave him. I am well & in high spirits as are all Lexington men being in great (torn). Permit me to close wishing you and the little ones the best of Blessings, I am my dear

your most affectionate
Husband
Edm. Munro

13-34 WILLIAM MUNROE

[William Munroe was orderly sergeant in Captain Parker's company in 1775; it was under his direction that a guard was posted at Mr. Clarke's house, on the evening of the 18th of April, 1775; and he paraded the men on the common the next morning, in the very face of the British troops. The services that he performed at the opening of the Revolution, were followed up by services during the progress of the war. He was a lieutenant in the northern army at the capture of Burgoyne, in 1777. He was a prominent citizen, and filled important town offices. For nine years he was a selectman, and represented the town two years. He marched towards Springfield during Shay's Rebellion and was a Colonel in the militia. He kept the public house, long known as the Munroe Tavern. Here the British regaled themselves, and committed many outrages on the 19th of April; here they shot down John Raymond who was leaving the house. In 1789, George Washington dined in the Munroe Tavern, on his visit to Lexington's battle field of the Revolution.

Here follows the deposition of William Munroe made 7 March 1825:

I, William Munroe, of Lexington, on oath do testify, that I acted as orderly sergeant in the company commanded by Captain Parker, on the 19th of April, 1775; that early in the evening of the 18th of the same April, I was informed by Solomon Brown, who had just returned from Boston, that he had seen nine British officers on the road, traveling leisurely, sometimes before and sometimes behind him; that he had discovered, by the occasional blowing aside of their top coats that they were armed. On learning this, I supposed they had some design upon Hancock and Adams, who were then at the house of the Reverend Mr. Clarke, and immediately assembled a guard of eight men, with their arms, to guard the house. About midnight, Colonel Paul Revere rode up the road and requested admittance. I told him that the family had just retired, and had requested, that they might not be disturbed by any noise about the house. "Noise!" said he, "you'll have noise enough before long. The regulars are coming out." We then permitted him to pass. Soon after, Mr. Lincoln came. These gentlemen came different routes, Revere came over the ferry to Charlestown, and Lincoln over the neck through Roxbury; and both brought letters from Dr. Warren in Boston to Hancock and Adams, stating that a large body of British troops had left Boston, and were on their march to Lexington. On this, it was thought advisable, that Hancock and Adams should withdraw to some distant part of the town. To this Hancock consented with great reluctance, and said, as he went off, "If I had my musket, I would never turn my back upon these troops." I however conducted them to the north part of town, and then returned to the meeting-house, where I arrived at about two o'clock on the morning of the 19th. On the arrival of Colonel Paul Revere, the alarm had been given, and, on my return, I found Captain Parker and his militia company paraded on the common, a little in the rear of the meeting-house. About this time, one of our messengers, who had been sent toward Cambridge to get information of the movement of the regulars, returned and reported, that he could not learn, that there were any troops on the road from Boston to Lexington, which raised some doubt as to their coming, and Captain Parker dismissed his company, with orders to assemble again at the beat of the drum. Between day-light and sun-rise Captain Thaddeus Bowman rode up and informed, that the regulars were near. The drum was then ordered to be beat, and I was commanded by Captain Parker to parade the company, which I accordingly did, in two ranks, a few rods northerly of the meeting-house.

When the British troops had arrived within about a hundred rods of the meeting-house, as I was afterwards told by a prisoner, which we took, "they heard our drum, and supposing it to be a challenge, they were ordered to load their muskets, and to move at double quick time." They came up almost upon a run. Colonel Smith and Major Pitcairn rode up some rods in advance of their troops, and within a few rods of our company, and exclaimed, "Lay down your arms, you rebels, and disperse!" and immediately fired his pistol. Pitcairn then advanced, and, after a moment's conversation with Colonel Smith, he advanced with his troops, and finding we did not disperse, they being within four rods of us, he brought his sword down with great force, and said to his men, "Fire, damn you, fire!" The front platoon, consisting of eight or nine, then fired, without killing or wounding any of our men. They immediately gave a second fire, when our company began to retreat, and, as I left the field, I saw a person firing at the British troops from Buckman's back door, which was near our left, where I was parading the men when I retreated. I was afterward told, of the truth of which I have no doubt, that same person, after firing from the back door, went to the front of Buckman's house, and fired there. How many of our company fired before they retreated, I can not say; but I am confident some of them did. When the British troops came up, I saw Jonas Parker standing in the ranks, with his balls and flints in his hat, on the ground, between his feet, and heard him declare, that he would never run. He was shot down at the second fire of the British, and, when I left, I saw him struggling on the ground, attempting to load his gun, which I have no doubt he had once discharged at the British. As he lay on the ground, they ran him through with the bayonet. In the course of the day, I was on the ground where the British troops were when they first heard our drum beat, which was one hundred rods below the meeting-house, and saw the ends of a large number, I should judge two hundred, of cartridges which they had dropped, when they charged their pieces. About noon I was at the north part of the town, at the house of Mr. Simmonds, where I saw the late Colonel Baldwin, who informed me, that he had the custody of some prisoners, that had been put under his charge, and requested to know of me what should be done with them. I gave my opinion, that they should be sent to that part of Woburn, now Burlington, or to Chelmsford. On the return of the British troops from Concord, they stopped at my tavern house in Lexington, and dressed their wounded. I had left my house in care of a lame man, by the name of Raymond, who supplied them with whatever the house afforded, and afterward, when he was leaving the house, he was shot by the regulars, and found dead within a few rods of the house.

13-36 NEHEMIAH MUNROE

The home of Deacon Munroe was a large three-story frame building and was for over half a century his residence. It was beyond Vernon Street. He was a known citizen, a cabinet maker by trade. It had been at one time the residence of James Orr, a blacksmith who bought it from Edmund Weld. Vernon Street is in Roxbury, Mass.

"Deacon Roe" as he was called was an odd fish, and something of a humorist, as well as a deacon of Dr. Porter's church. Standing in his doorway one morning, soon after the Universalist Church was built, he was accosted by a stranger, who asked him if he had seen a stray white horse passing that way. "No," was the reply. "Where had I better look for him?" queried the stranger. "Oh well!" said the deacon, "p'r'aps you'd better go to the Universalist grounds, 'bout everything fetches up there nowadays."

Land was purchased from Deacon Nehemiah Munroe for the Dudley Street Baptist Church, the first building, of wood. It was raised 10 May 1820.

Huge boulders of conglomerate were strewn about near his farm and one of them called "Rocking Stone" was a famous natural curiosity, and was located on the Munroe Farm, in the northwest corner of Mr. J. P. Townsend's estate, on Townsend Street.

The Munroe farm of 22 acres, between Munroe and Townsend Streets was bought by the town in 1829.

13-47 DR. EPHRAIM MUNROE

Although the Lancaster, Mass. vital records show the marriage of Ephraim Munroe and Mrs. Mary Atherton, the compiler of this genealogy believes his wife to be Mercy Atherton, for the following reasons: Harvard, Mass. vital records list her in the births of her children as Mercy, her death in the Harvard, Mass. vital records also shows her as Mercy, one of her children is named Atherton; the Harvard vital records shows her intention of marriage as Mercy and there are no records of her ever being married before her marriage to Ephraim Munroe, hence she must have been Mercy Atherton, not Mrs. Mary Atherton. This would make her parents, Peter and Experience and her birth date 11 April 1753. Another Mary Atherton married Elijah Ward and they had children as late as 1783 so this excludes the aforementioned Mercy.

Dr. Ephraim Munroe was a Dr. at Harvard, Mass.

14-52 TIMOTHY MUNROE

He marched with the Danvers company on the 19th of April 1775, met the British at West Cambridge. He settled in Lynnfield, Mass., where he was selectman for several years, his house was still standing about 1912.

On 19 April 1775, the British troops were coming down the road, and Timothy Munroe was standing behind a house with Daniel Townsend. (This was probably in West Cambridge). They were firing at the British as they retreated towards Boston. Townsend had just fired, and exclaimed, "There is another redcoat down," when Munroe, looking around, saw, to his astonishment, that they were completely hemmed in by the flank guard of the British army, who were coming down through the fields behind them. They immediately ran into the house, and looked for the cellar; but there was none. They looked for a closet, but there was none. All this time, which was indeed but a moment, the balls were pouring through the back windows, making havoc of the glass. Townsend leaped through the end window, carrying the sash and all with him, and instantly fell dead. Munroe followed, and ran for his life. He passed for a long distance between both parties, many of whom fired at him. As he passed the last soldier, who stopped to fire, he heard the redcoat exclaim, "Damn the Yankee! he is bullet proof—let him go!" Mr. Munroe had one ball through his leg, and thirty-two bullet holes through his clothes and hat. Even the metal buttons on his waistcoat were shot off. He kept his clothes until he was tired of showing them.

14-65 JOHN MUNROE

[John Munroe was a minute-man, and saw service on 19 April 1775. He lived on Woburn Street. Here follows his deposition.

I, John Munroe, of Lexington, a collector of tolls for the Middlesex Turnpike, being in the seventy-seventh year of my age, on oath do depose and say, that I was a corporal in the Lexington Company of Militia, which was commanded by the late Captain John Parker, in the year 1775; that, for some weeks previous to the 19th of April of that year, the company was frequently called out for exercise, and desired to furnish ourselves with arms and ammunition, and to be in constant readiness for action.

On the morning of the 19th, at about two o'clock, as near as I can recollect, Francis Brown, who was sergeant in the same company, called me out of bed, and said, the British troops had left Boston, and were on their march to Lexington. I immediately repaired to the place of parade, which was the common, adjoining the meeting-house, where sixty or seventy of the company had assembled in arms. Captain Parker ordered the roll to be called, and every man to load his piece with powder and ball. After remaining on parade some time, and there being no further accounts of the approach of the regulars, we were dismissed, but ordered to remain within call of the drum. About daylight, Captain Parker had information, that a regiment of British troops were near, and immediately ordered the drum beat to arms. I took my station on the right. While the company were collecting, Captain Parker, then left, gave orders for every man to stand his ground until he should order them to leave. Many of the company had withdrawn to a considerable distance, and, by the time sixty or seventy of them had collected, the drum still beating to arms, the front ranks of the British troops appeared within twelve or fifteen rods of our line. They continued their march within about eight rods of us, when an officer on horseback, Lieutenant Colonel Smith, who rode in front of the troops, exclaimed, "Lay down your arms and disperse you rebels!" Finding our company kept their ground, Colonel Smith ordered his troops to fire. This order not being obeyed, he then said to them, "G-d damn you, fire!" The front platoon then discharged their pieces, and, another order being given to fire, there was a general discharge from the front ranks. After the first fire of the regulars, I thought, and so stated Ebenezer Munroe, Jun. who stood next to me on the left, that they had fired nothing but powder; but, on the second firing, Munroe said, they had fired something more than powder, for he had just received a wound in his arm; and now, said he, to use his own words, "I'll give them the guts of my gun." We then both took aim at the main body of the British troops—the smoke preventing our seeing anything but the heads of some of their horses—and discharged our pieces.

After the second firing from the British troops, I distinctly saw Jonas Parker struggling on the ground, with his gun in hand, apparently attempting to load it. In this situation the British came up, run him through with his bayonet, and killed him on the spot. After I fired the first time, I retreated about ten rods, and then loaded my gun a second time, with two balls, and on firing at the British, the strength of the charge took off about a foot of my gun barrel.

Such was the general confusion, and so much firing on the part of the British, that it was impossible for me to know the number of our men, who fired immediately on receiving the second fire from the British troops; but that some of them fired, besides Ebenezer Munroe and myself, I am very confident. The regulars kept up a fire in all directions, as long as they could see a man of our company in arms. Isaac Muzzy, Jonathan Harrington, and my father, Robert Munroe, were found dead near the place where our line was formed. Samuel Hadley and John Brown were killed after they had gotten off the common. Asahel Porter, of Woburn, who had been taken a prisoner by the British on their march to Lexington, attempted to make his escape, and was shot within a few rods of the common. Caleb Harrington was shot down on attempting to leave the meeting-house, where he and some others had gone, before the British soldiers came up, for the purpose of removing a quantity of powder that was stored there.

On the morning of the 19th, two of the British soldiers, who were in the rear of the main body of their troops, were taken prisoners and disarmed by our men, and, a little after sun-rise, they were put under the care of Thomas R. Willard and myself, with orders to march them to Woburn Precinct, now Burlington. We conducted them as far as Captain Read's where they were put into custody of some other persons, but whom I do not now recollect.

14-82 ISHMAEL MUNRO(E)

[Ishmael Munro(e), b. after the death of his father. He was the second posthumous child his mother had, one by each husband.]

In the death record of Burlington, Mass., Ishmael Munroe is noted as Captain and the record shows him to be 81 years, 10 months, and 14 days, old at death. This does not exactly agree with other records.

In the History of Woburn, by Samuel Sewall, it says, Ishmael Munroe, had copies of an incident whereby a Rev. Mr. Jackson was named by a Mrs. Keziah Henshaw, (or Hincher, as the name was commonly pronounced), as the father of her baby. This was certified by the midwife under her hand. Mrs. Keziah Henshaw was the widow of Thomsa Henshaw, who died in 1747.

The Reverend Josiah Cotton took sides with widow Henshaw and then Rev. Jackson commenced libel action against Rev. Cotton. Finally the case was brought before the court of Common Pleas at Concord, in Sept. 1752. It was finally decided by that court that Rev. Mr. Jackson should recover against the Rev. Mr. Cotton the sum One Thousand Pounds, damage.

The Rev. Mr. Cotton took the case to the next Superior Court of the Province, held at Charlestown, 30 Jan. 1753. This court reversed the decision of the first court and decided that the Rev. Mr. Cotton should recover Costs of Courts against the Rev. Mr. Jackson.

Next a council of churches and ministerial brethern was convened, either just at this time, or at a little earlier period of this difficulty, to consider and advise upon the affairs of the Rev. Mr. Jackson. The result of this council, it is understood, was published at the time, and a copy long preserved in the house of the late Captain Ishmael Munroe, of Burlington, deceased. But several years before his death, this copy was lost; and as no other is known to exist, the object and doings of the council referred to can only be conjectured.

In the Woburn History mentioned above, Mr. Munroe's house is mentioned as follows: It stood where the road from the precinct meeting-house to Lexington intersects the ancient road from Woburn Centre to Hodge Hole Meadows in Burlington.

[Ishmael Munroe was a Captain of the militia, 27 Feb. 1794.]

19-81 ISAAC MONROE

He was born in Conn. and died at the home of his son Dan Monroe, in Plymouth, N. Y. His wife through her mother was a descendant of the pioneer families of Bushnell and Leffingwell.

Isaac Monroe, was residing in Pomfret from 1768 until after 1785, in Brooklyn, in 1800 and in Greene, Chenango County, N. Y. in 1818.

Was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, first in 1775. When the Lexington Alarm sounded he responded and served with the militia near Boston for twenty days, afterwards he enlisted in Pomfret, 1 Jan. 1776, and served one year in Captain Grosvenor's company of Colonel John Durkee's regiment.

In May 1798 he purchased a fulling mill in Lebanon, Conn., from his son Dan and sold it to James Sexton the following year by deed witnessed by his son Dan and daughter Lucy.

In 1818 he applied for a pension which was granted in 1820. He was a soldier by trade. His application was supported by affidavit of his brother William and his comrade in arms, Jonathan Crane. His own affidavit, sworn to in 1820, states that he was a saddler by trade, with no family, unable to labor, in indigent circumstances and residing with and supported by his son Joseph in Greene.

His name appears on the records in Pomfret and Brooklyn and on the index to the deeds in Lebanon as Isaac Row. In the body of the Lebanon deeds his surname is spelled Mon Row and Munrow. The latter spelling of his surname appears in his signature, also in that of his son Dan and daughter Lucy, witnessing the deeds to James Sexton. Notwithstanding these discrepancies in spelling his surname upon the records, his identity is amply proven by the affidavit of his brother William Monroe, stating that he and Isaac were brothers, also by existing family records, among which are his son Joseph's family Bible in the possession of E. L. Monroe in Columbus, Pa. stating that Joseph was born 25 Sept. 1776 and separate family records prepared by each of his grandsons, Dyer Monroe, and James Sexton Monroe, the former now in the possession of Dyer's grandmother, Mrs. Estella Hughes in Plymouth, N. Y., the latter with James Sexton's daughter, Mrs. Ella M. Axline of Ada, Ohio, until her death in 1930. Each of these two records state that their father, Dan, son of Isaac Monroe, was born in Pomfret 22 Aug. 1774. These dates exactly correspond with the dates shown by the Pomfret records when sons Joseph and Dan were born to Isaac Row.

19-83 LEONARD MONROE

Leonard Monroe appears to have been a widower in Nov. 1807 when he conveyed land by deed recorded in book 1, page 556, Delaware County Deed Records, containing no mention of a wife, while the deeds subsequently made by him in 1814 and 1815 recorded in Book 3, pages 185 and 512 were signed by his wife Hannah Monroe.

He enlisted as a private in Captain Ball's Company, Colonel Samuel B. Webb's Fourth Conn. Regiment in East Windsor, Conn., 14 March 1777, was later transferred to Captain Whitney's Company, same regiment, where he was appointed sergeant. He remained in the service until honorably discharged in Morristown, N. J., 17 March 1780. Later he, his mother and his brothers Isaac and William, his uncle David Welch, and David's sons, John, Aaron and Ebenezer Welch moved to Chenango County, N. Y. While Leonard Monroe was commissioned lieutenant in the State Militia in 1793 and Captain in 1798. He was placed on the Revolutionary soldier's pension roll 21 June 1819. His application states that he was a tailor by trade.

In 1804 he and John, Aaron and Ebenezer Welch moved to Liberty Township, then in Franklin, now in Delaware County, Ohio. The Monroe and Welch families were closely related by marriage. David Welch married Amitty Read, sister of Samuel Monroe's wife Abigail. John Welch married his cousin, Deborah Monroe, sister of Leonard.

19-84 WILLIAM MONROE

He served nearly four years as a soldier in the Revolutionary War, first from 6 April to 23 May 1777 under Captain Edward Griswold in Colonel Thomas Bilding's regiment, Conn. Volunteers, when he was discharged in Peekskill, N. Y. He next enlisted for three years in Captain Harmon's company of Colonel John Durkee's Fourth Regiment of Conn. Volunteers from which service he was honorably discharged in 1780 in Morristown, N. J. During his first year he served as a private, then was transferred to Captain Seth Phillip's company of the same regiment, in which he served as a fifer for two years. He engaged in the battles of Germantown, Fort Mifflin, Monmouth and Stoney Point. After his discharge in 1780 he served for six months as orderly sergeant to his old Colonel John Durkee. Later he served a three month's term on a sloop in New York. His interest in military affairs did not abate with the revolution.

He subsequently moved in 1792 from Windsor, Conn. to Chenango County, N. Y., and settled there on the tract on which the court house in the city of Norwich now stands. He there joined the State Militia, serving as ensign, lieutenant, major, and lieutenant colonel between 1797 and 1809. By reason of this service he became generally known as Colonel Monroe.

Later William Monroe moved to a farm in the nearby town of Plymouth, N. Y., where he built a log house and lived until he died. He, his mother and other members of the Monroe family were buried in a cemetery on his farm between Norwich and the village of Plymouth.

He served three terms as sheriff of Chenango County and as the member of the Assembly from that county during the session of 1816.

1/12-35 JONATHAN MUNROE

Jonathan Munroe left Spencer, Mass. and went to Plainfield, Mass., where he had eight children by his first wife. Then he returned to Spencer, with all his children, except the two oldest, and purchased the farm formerly owned by David and Robert Griffin and later in part owned by his son Jonathan. He was in Plainfield, Mass. before 1780. At a legal meeting of the inhabitants of the District of Plainfield, in the home of Mr. Simon Burroughs, on Monday, 25 July 1785 Mr. Munroe was chosen one of the Surveyors of Highways. The next eight meetings were held at the home of Jonathan Munroe, whose house then stood where that of the late Lewis Shaw house stood. In Plainfield he bought numerous pieces of land, the records of these purchases are in the Registry of Deeds at Northampton, Mass.

The compiler of this genealogy visited Plainfield, Mass. on 26 April 1964 and found the home of Jonathan Munroe still standing and in fine condition, it is now owned by Mr. Edward Bloom.

When Jonathan Munroe returned to Spencer from Plainfield, he purchased a farm in North Spencer, where he and his son Jonathan lived for many years. He lived in a long low house on the east side of the road, and it was in this house that his son Jonathan was born. The son and mother lived in this house after the death of the father until the son built a new house on the west side of the road.

A daughter Clarissa was born to Jonathan Munroe, the father, and Sally Coggswell, before he married her. This child was brought up in his family. She was always known to the family as Aunt Kent and was a very estimable woman.

Jonathan Munroe was a great hunter, and used to go to Kentucky to hunt, where he hunted with Daniel Boone.

Amos Munroe (1/12-34) brother of Jonathan, came to Spencer and bought a farm in 1768. Jonathan came to Spencer about that time.

13-41-2 THOMAS MONRO

Thomas Monro was baptized at St. Michael's Church by the first Rev. John Usher, on 12 May 1765. He lived for a time on what was known as the Herreshoff farm on Poppasush, Bristol, R. I., then on the main road of Bristol leading to the ferry. In Oct. 1823 he moved to Columbia, Pa. (Sylvania P.O.) taking the younger members of his family, where he lived until his death, which was in Bradford County. In his youth he learned the tailor's trade but later became a farmer. From records of his family, it is shown that some of his older children who married in R. I., followed him later to Penna.

13-41-5 EPHRAIM MONRO

He was a blacksmith, he bought the farm on Crooked Lane, Bristol, R. I., which he called "Mt. Ephraim." This is still standing on the now Bayview Ave., but about 1944 it was divided; the ell moved about 75 feet to the south to make another house.

All the following members of Ephraim Monro's family are buried in old Juniper Hill Cemetery, which is at the end of Sherry Ave., off Bayview Ave. (Crooked Lane). William Pearse Monro surveyed and laid out Juniper Hill about 1840. Many families as well as his, moved old graves to Juniper Hill from the Old East Burying Ground near the Common in Bristol, R. I. Among these are the graves of William Pearse and his wife Lydia, parents of Dr. Thomas Monro. These of Ephraim and William Pearse Monro's lots are together well within the grounds to the northeast, George Brownell Monro's lot is the first seen from the entrance gate.

Juniper Hill now contains many of Bristol's most well known and oldest families.

13-8/11-8 JAY RANDOLPH MONROE

Jay Randolph Monroe as a boy removed with his father to Hamilton, N. Y., his opportunities for an education were very limited in his youth. They located in Madison County, where Jay Randolph Monroe was apprenticed as a mason. When he was twenty years old he started for the great West, which in his days was anywhere beyond Buffalo. His first stop was at Detroit where he plyed his trade for a while about 1826 or 1827. He was next employed by General Cass and a Mr. Campeau in the location of lands for two years. He returned to New York and made his home there for two years and in 1830 or 1831 he came back to Michigan and settled in Prairie Ronde. Most of his time now was spent in locating lands for others and his commissions he applied to the purchase of lands for himself.

Mr. Monroe was the first white man to explore the region of what is now Van Buren County, and in a part of it which is now South Haven he built the first house in 1833 where the town now stands. He was not married at the time and a family by the name of Thomas occupied the house; in this family a child was born and died, this was the first birth and death in the place. He opened the first road from South Haven to Prairie Ronde. In 1836 he married Miss Fannie Rawson, a native of Mass., they boarded for a while in Kalamazoo. The next year, he settled on the land he owned in Lawrende Township, where all their children were born, and where three died.

Mr. Monroe lived in Lawrence Township the rest of his life, he was one of the largest landowners in the county, at one time he had 6400 acres. He continued as land agent and was appointed Judge under the Territorial Government and was always known as Judge Monroe.

He was a greatly trusted man by all his neighbors, a commissioner of the poor for twenty-five years, in politics a democrat, greatly interested in education, and did much toward organizing the schools in his district.

On his return from the fair held in Grand Rapids, he received an injury from which he never fully recovered, but he still attended to his business and kept a keen interest in all passing events. When the Centennial was open in Philadelphia, he and his family with a few friends, went to Philadelphia. Upon arrival in that city, he was taken sick and was only able to attend the fair one day, and then but a few hours. With his wife and children they returned home at once, and he died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Eunice Moore.

15-21-3 WILLIAM MONROE

Mr. William Monroe began the manufacture of lead pencils in Concord, Mass., in 1812, when articles made abroad were very scarce and expensive owing to the war with Great Britain, and the resulting interruption of imports. William's method of making pencils was his own invention and he claimed to have no instruction from any one on their manufacture. He made the lead for his first pencil grinding the materials with a hammer head, which was mixed in a common spoon, this pencil was sold to Benjamin Andrews in Boston.

His grandson, Ralph Middleton Munroe, said the first of these pencils sold for a shilling each. In "The Commodore's Story," (1930), Ralph Middleton Munroe tells how his grandfather went into business in earnest: "Quantity production involved new troubles, but perseverance conquered them, and the vital steps remained secret to himself and his wife, performed by their own hands. This phase of the business prospered until the war cut off supplies of black lead. After the war, it was resumed, and in a short time grandfather had made a capital quite respectable for that period. In 1814 he produced 1212 gross, for which he received $5946. He now had to compete with the imported article, and his crude product was at first out-classed. Nevertheless he kept on, and in 1819 decided that he would concentrate on them. He sold his cabinet shop, taking pencil woods as pay, and shortly found himself established as not only the first, but the best of American pencil makers. Improvements continued until 1830, when the trade sought him, rather than he the trade. He made as high as four thousand gross a year, of such quality that they readily outsold the imported ones and were eventually counterfeited by foreign makers . . . His wife remained his only confidante, and was a most efficient helpmate; many a gross of pencils were stamped, wrapped, labelled, and packed by her after a long day's work in the care of her large family."

Our country grew so fast that it was difficult to keep track of such things, and several leading manufacturers have claimed the honour which belongs to William Monroe. He is given the credit by Josephine Swayne in "The Story of Concord," (1923), in Kane's book "Famous Firsts," in an article in The Scientific American for 4 Jan. 1879 (refuting another claim in Scribner's Magazine for April 1878), and in several books of reference.

Mr. Monroe's son Francis, carried on the pencil business until 1849 or later.

19-81-4 DAN MONROE

His first business venture, of which there is an account, was the purchase of a fulling mill in Lebanon, Conn., which he operated until he sold it to his father in May 1798. He remained in Lebanon until near the close of 1800, when he moved to Berkshire County, Mass., where he remained until 1816, residing first in Pittsfield, next in Sandisfield and lastly in Tyringham. At Pittsfield, he bought, in 1800, from Valentine Rathburn, Sr., an antiquated fulling mill which Rathburn had owned since 1770, of which it is said in Smith's "History of Pittsfield," "It was none of your newfangled German inventions, but an old fashioned, double-action crank-mill, driven by a three-foot, open-bucket water wheel, only warranteed to run in a high freshet or a long spell of weather." He equipped the mill with new and improved machinery and sold it to Daniel Stearns in1801. In 1816 he and his family moved to Plymouth, N. Y., where he built and resided in a log house, one of the first dwellings in the town. He built a carding mill there, which he and a partner operated, under the firm name of Monroe and Locke, until the year 1839. He also built another carding mill at the neighborhing village of Sherburne Four Corners.

He served as a solider in the War of 1812 in Captain John Wilson's company, Colonel Prentice William's Second regiment of Mass. Volunteers.

11-86-16 IVERS MUNROE

Mr. Munroe lived in Ashburnham, Mass., until 1846, he then moved to Camden, N. Y., where he entered the law office of Stephen Cromwell as a student. He found Mr. Cromwell to be an able instructor and a generous friend. After he was admitted to the bar in 1848, a partnership was immediately formed, as the business of the office increased it was ably handled by Cromwell and Munroe for the next twenty years. These years of labor were crowned by a fitting measure of success. During the Civil War, Ivers Munroe was commissioner of drafts and enrolment of the twentith District of New York. He next went to Iowa, and from 1842 to 1862 he actively practiced his profession, first at Sidney in Tremont County and next at Clinton, the shire of Clinton County. In his field he was at once recognized as a faithful attorney and a man of character and integrity. In Clinton, he was alderman for several years, and held a prominent position in professional, public affairs and business. About 1882 he resided in Oneida, N. Y. in impaired health.

The following is his obituary at Oneida, N. Y.

"Ivers Munroe
Descendant of Him who fired the shot Heard Round the World.

Oneida, July 7, 1899—The funeral of Ivers Munroe was held at 11 o'clock to-day at his home, no. 6 Seneca Street, the services being conducted by the Rev. Louis H. Holden, assistant pastor of the first Presbyterian church, and at noon the body was taken to Camden for burial. . . The bearers were E. Eugene Coon, Allen S. Whitman, Hiram L. Rockwell, Roswell B. Downing, James B. Jenkins and E. Emmons Coe.

Ivers Munroe was highly respected, and his memory will be long cherished on account of his good deeds. He was born at Ashburnham, Mass., in 1822. Twenty-four years later he moved to Camden, where he studied law in the office of Attorney Stephen Cromwell and was admitted to practice in 1848. He formed a partnership with Mr. Cromwell, which lasted for a period of more than twenty years. During his residence at Camden Mr. Munroe was elected Justice of the Peace, and from 1862 to 1865 he was Commissioner of Drafts for the twentieth district. His commission was signed by Secretary Stanton, and his office was at that of the Provost Marshall at Utica.

Mr. Munroe removed to Iowa in 1868, first locating at Sidney and afterward at Clinton where he practiced his profession. While at Clinton he was elected to represent his ward in the Board of Aldermen. Coming here in 1882, he resumed his practice, and became a trustee of, and the attorney for the Oneida Savings bank. Owing to failing health, he resigned those offices last winter. He was an attendant of the First Presbyterian church, although not embraced in its membership.

Lieut. Ebenezer Munroe, credited by historians with having fired the first gun for the American side in the war of independence, and was one of the first patriots wounded in the first battle at Lexington, was the grandsire of the deceased. Besides a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Homer Chapin of this place, and a son Charles Munroe of Hacketstown, N. J., the deceased is survived by one brother, Loring Munroe, a venerable resident of Broad Street. He was the son of Charles Munroe, a soldier during the second war with England in 1812, serving with the Ashburnham Light Infantry."

Children:

The History of Ashburnham, Mass. by Ezra Stearns, 1887, says that Ivers Munroe had seven children, and that only two were living in 1887. This must be erroneous for the obituary above mentions a Charles Munroe. It is the compiler's belief that the above Mrs. Homer Chapin was a daughter by his third wife's previous marriage.

Another child of Ivers Munroe, was Frank Munroe, b. circa 1849 and d. 30 Sept. 1881; as proven by the following obituary, in an Oneida, N. Y. newspaper.

"Munroe—In this city at 11 a.m. Sept. 30, 1881, of consumption, Frank Munroe, son of Ivers Munroe, aged 32 years.

Deceased had been in a decline for several years, and confined to his room for several weeks and to his bed for ten days. He passed into an unconscious condition at seven o'clock in the morning and died peacefully four hours later, surrounded by the saddened household.

Mr. Munroe came here from Syracuse, N. Y. three years ago joining his father's family here. He spent the following summer in the Red River country, but derived no perceptible benefit from his sojourn there.

The deceased was a member of the Episcopal church and was universally esteemed as a worthy young man.

Funeral services will be held at the house on Fifth Avenue at 7:30 tomorrow (Saturday) morning, and the remains will go east by the express at nine o'clock for burial at Camden, N. Y., the parents accompanying."

11-86-17 LORING MUNROE

Loring Munroe, left Ashburnham, Mass., when he was twenty years old and settled in Cleveland, N. Y. In Cleveland he became interested in the manufacture of glass, in which he was to become successful. For several years he owned an interest in the American Glass Co., at Bernhard's Bay. He and his father-in-law, George Cowarden owned the Dunbarton Glass Works in Dunbarton, N. Y. Dunbarton, was a village that once stood on the Erie Canal between State Bridge and Higginsville, but which has long since disappeared. About 1861, after Mr. George Cowarden's death Mr. Loring Munroe was sole owner of the Glass Works. Mr. Munroe's sons also assisted in the operation of the Glass Works.

For several of his later years Mr. Loring Munroe resided in Oneida, N. Y. in the county of Madison. He was a trustee of the Oneida Savings Bank and an active member of the banking house of Barnes, Stark and Munroe. He was greatly interested in the prosperity of the town, which is attested by the Munroe Block, and of the Opera House of which he was joint owner with Mr. Barnes. He occupied several positions of trust and was held in high esteem by his associates.

(The following write-up appeared some 70 years ago in Oneida, N. Y. Dispatch).

Loring Munroe will build chapel for Glenwood cemetery

Plans prepared by Wellington Taber of Syracuse for a handsome stone structure—Donor a valued citizen

Glenwood, one of the most beautiful cemeteries in Central New York and this village's principal place of burial, is lacking in but one detail of perfect appointment. That is a chapel. And that is to be supplied by a man ever identified with the interests of the town, a large contributor to everything that has a tendency to advance the interests of the community, whose charitable impulses, industry and enterprise will long be remembered after he shall have bidden farewell to earthly things—Loring Munroe.

Mr. Munroe has already contracted for the erection of the proposed edifice which will adjoin the receiving vault. Plans have been prepared by Wellington Taber, a Syracuse architect and the building will be erected by George Avery. Gothic in style of architecture, the materials will be of enduring stone and brick, with a roof of slate and galvanized iron trim. The measurements are twenty-two by thirty-two feet, with a porte cochere at entrance in front, affording a covered alighting place at the double doorway, above which is to be a large window of artistic design. On the sides there will be three plate glass windows, and in the rear above the doors leading to the vault will be another ornamental window.

On the front of the edifice will be the inscription, "Munroe Memorial Chapel." It is to be heated by furnaces placed in basement. Work will be commenced just as soon as weather becomes settled. The site selected has been approved by the cemetery association directors, one of whom is Mr. Munroe. The chapel will be a fitting monument of its donor, and a necessity that has long been needed and the munificent gift is sure of being appreciated.

Mr. Munroe has been a resident of this village since 1877. For many years before removing here he lived at Cleveland and Bernhards Bay where he was interested in the manufacture of glass. For sixteen years he was owner of the glass factory at Dunbarton. Before becoming a resident of Oneida, Mr. Munroe was elected a trustee of Oneida Savings Bank. At one time he was a member of the private banking firm of Barnes, Stark & Munroe. He erected the building now occupied by the Farmers & Merchants Bank of which he is president. He has represented the old town of Lenox in the County Board of Supervisors. His philanthropy, something he declines to discuss, is known to be generous and far reaching.

Mr. Munroe was born in 1826 in Ashburnham, Mass. His ancestors figured prominently in the early struggles of the Colonists. He is a grandson of Ebenezer Munroe, credited by historians with having fired the first shot on the American side in the first battle of the Revolutionary war. Loring Munroe has one brother, Ivers, and three sons, George L., Charles I., and Anthony B. all living here.

11-10/5-63 JOSIAH JOHNSON MUNROE

Mr. Munroe resided in Roxbury, Mass. and was a house painter. In a Bible that Josiah Johnson Munroe gave to his son, George Harris Munroe (Family no. 11-10/5-63-1) he wrote the following:

"My Dear Children:

I want to write a few lines in this Book. Not to add to its contents, but that you can look back years from now and say my father wrote that. My father wrote in this Book to me and has taught me to believe in the Spirit of it, this is my desire, that you may believe in the Spirit of this Book, and live in this world as you wish you had when you go to the next. You have started on a voyage through this world (I have got most through it) and as a ship must have a pilot, so must you have one. You may meet with shipwreck and disaster, yet you will come safe into Port if you believe in the Author of the Bible. I would not give up my Faith in God for all the world contains, He is my all, you may take all else, but He remains and I want no more. Oh my dear ones, do trust in Him now while you have health and strength to do it. Trust Him as you trusted me when you were young. I could write a volume to you but this must do, and if, I had all the world to leave you, it would be nothing compaired to the desire, that you may trust in God."

11-10/5-10/3 GEORGE HARRIS MONROE

He received his preliminary education at Day's Academy at Wrentham, Mass. Mr. Monroe was an ardent reader and while at the Academy, which had a small library, he read every book in it. A more thorough education was soon to begin, but not that of formal schooling. When he was sixteen he went to Boston to learn the printer's trade in the office of Samuel N. Dickinson.

Soon his knowledge broadened and he became a proof reader and because of his love for reading and good literature, he was able to distinguish between good and bad writing. As his accomplishments in literature were inherent within the man, he then went to work at the University Press at Cambridge, Mass., in 1859. Here he became acquainted with some of the tales of Nathaniel Hawthorne before they reached the public, this was a period in which Mr. Hawthorne was at his greatest and best productivity.

In 1849, at the age of twenty-three he was for a short time an editorial writer for the Lawrence Courier. In 1857 he began writing Boston letters for the Dedham Gazette. In 1859 he bought the Norfolk County Journal, which was published weekly, he was sole publisher, editor, reporter and proof-reader. When Roxbury was annexed to Boston he changed the name of the paper to the Suffolk County Journal. He sold this paper sometime after 1866.

As a journalist, Mr. Monroe was noted for his "Templeton" letters to the Hartford Courant, over a period of thirty-five years.

He had two passions outside of the work which gave him his livelihood. He was an omnivorous reader, particularly devoted to fiction, reading almost every new novel as it appeared. Baseball was his strong diversion, being a regular attendant at every professional baseball game in Boston, having his own seat in the grandstand, marked with his name. He knew the capacity and achievements of every prominent player, local or visiting.

He served as a Senator to the General Court of Mass., from Suffolk County in 1869. He was a member of the Mass. Historical Society, which has the collection of his writings. Mr. Monroe was proud of one incident in his life when he resided in Dedham, he acted as a conductor of Abraham Lincoln (who at this time had not attained great National importance) from Boston to Dedham, where Lincoln was to make a speech. His daughter told her nieces, Mr. Monroe was embarrassed, because Mr. Lincoln removed his coat and sat in his shirt sleeves on the train trip.

Mr. Monroe became a Republican at the early stages when the party was being formed but was not a strict adherent to party lines.

At one time he was a member of the firm of Sewall and Munroe, hardware dealers in Dock Square, Boston, Mass., and for the firm he undertook the management of a small paper mill, located on Vine Brook at Bedford, Mass. From this experience, and after the mill burned, he started a larger plant at South Lawrence, Mass., which developed into the Munroe Felt and Paper Co., and of which he was the president for many years.

He was a genial, courteous man, proud of Lexington, interested in improving and beautifying it, and a delightful entertainer of friends and visitors. By his will, Mr. Munroe bequeathed to the Lexington Historical Society, on behalf of his brother William (family no. 13-34-51) and himself, that part of his real estate known as the "Munroe Tavern" and a parcel of land surrounding it, to be kept for-ever as a token of Colonial and Revolutionary Lexington. Mr. Monroe held the position of Cashier in the First National Bank at South Haven, Mich., he also had an excellent fruit farm near the city, and was known as one of the shrewdest financiers and business men in Western Michigan. He received his education in the district school and the High School at Decatur, Mich., he spent his youth and boyhood on his father's farm. When twenty years old, he went to Kalamazoo and took a course at Parson's Business College, when he finished his course he went to work for an uncle, L. T. Rawson, at Decatur, they were engaged in the grain business. Upon his arrival in South Haven, 21 April 1873, he was the book-keeper in the First National Bank, later he served as Assistant Cashier and Cashier. Upon the organization of the State Bank he held a similar position.

His fruit farm was sixty acres, near South Haven. At the time of purchase this land was unimproved, Mr. Monroe developed it into a first-class fruit farm, mainly with peaches, but he did raise a few other fruits. He was interested in real estate and loans, he handled both town estates and farms. He built many homes and owned several summer cottages. Not an active politician, he was a Republican, also was treasurer of the Baptist Church for fourteen years.

14-81-31 JESSE BEERS MUNROE

Jesse Beers Munroe's death records are incorrect and this family has had difficulty with D.A.R. acceptance of applications for membership, because of the following incident.

The wife of Jesse Beers Munroe, Ann Fosgate (Gowing) Munroe, had been up all night looking after her husband in his last illness, and was so worn out from a long attendance upon him, that when at his death in the late hours of the morning, she mistakenly gave the name of Jesse's father, as Jesse, instead of Andrew. The grand-daughters of Jesse Beers Munroe, children of Andrew Brigham Munroe, Clara Hosmer (Family no. 14-81-31-21), Sarah Winifred (Family no. 14-81-31-23), Mary Wiley (Family no. 14-81-31-24), and Anna Fosgate (Family no. 14-81-31-25) all knew about this event, and one of them related it to Roy Garland Munroe (Family no. 14-81-31-43) long before members of the family were interested in D.A.R. memberships.

In a letter from Mary Wiley (Munroe) Talbot (Family no. 14-81-31-24), dated 1911, now in the possession of Roy Garland Munroe (Family no.

14-81-31-43), she says, "Grandfather Munroe (Jesse Beers Munroe) was the son of Andrew Munroe and Mary Beers. Grandmother Munroe (Jesse Beers Munroe's wife) carelessly gave grandfather Munroe's, father's name, wrong on his death certificate."

The following is a letter from Sarah Winifred Munroe, written at Palmer Lake, Colorado, 14 Aug. 1944.

"To whom it may concern.

I Sarah Winifred Munroe, formerly of N. Reading, Mass., daughter of Andrew Brigham Munroe of that town, and granddaughter of Jesse Beers Munroe of the same town, heard my father make this statement.

"My mother, on my father's death certificate, made a mistake in regard to his father's name."

Jesse Beers Munroe was the son of Andrew Munroe and Mary Beers.

I hope this may straighten out the genealogical error.

Signed: Sarah Winifred Munroe
Palmer Lake, Colo."

19-81-62 SAMUEL MONROE

Mr. Monroe resided, all, or nearly all, his life in Chenango County, N. Y. He is listed in the public directory of Chenango County for 1869-70 as a farmer and proprietor of a sawmill in the town of Norwich, N. Y.

Samuel Monroe's family was patriotic. The five brothers, Frederick David, George O., Israel Daniel, Samuel and Charles responded to their country's call to arms and enlisted in Company B, One Hundred and Fourteenth Regiment, N. Y. volunteers, recruited in Chenango County in 1862. Only Frederick David and Israel Daniel, returned. The former was captured and suffered the horrors of an enemy's military prison; the latter was twice wounded in action and twice promoted. George, Samuel and Charles died in the service. Of their sister Mary (Mrs. Sayles), in the announcement of her death that appeared in a newspaper published in Norwich, N. Y., it was said: "She had five brothers, who were Civil War Veterans. She was a devoted Christian and intensely patriotic. She invariably displayed the American Flag on every holiday——Mrs. Sayles will be remembered as an ardent worker in war charity and Red Cross during the World War."

1/12-35-10/8 WALTER MARSHALL MONROE

In 1900, Walter Marshall Monroe had a nervous breakdown, which resulted in his commitment to the Worcester, Mass., State Hospital, where he died. He made a very remarkable chain from one piece of wood, which was much admired. This chain is now in the possession of Drusilla (Monroe) Calitri, (family no. 1/12-35-10/6-13), daughter of Arthur Monroe, (family no. 1/12-35-10/6-1).

An interesting item: When Walter's father died, (Jonathan, family no. 1/12-35-10/), he left the house on Wire Hill Road to Walter Marshall Monroe, and directed him to give each of his sons and daughters a certain sum of money except Charles Henry (family no. 1/12-35-10/3), whom he omitted for some reason. When the will was read, Walter Marshall left out the exception, and paid him as the rest, and Charles Henry Monroe never knew his father had intended to have him omitted.

1/12-41-10/8 ORVAN PAYSON MONROE

Mr. Monroe and his wife moved to Liberty Prairie, Ill. in 1866, they remained there until 1881, they then moved to Whiting, Kansas. Mr. Monroe was engaged in the cattle business and was the owner of a large live-stock farm in Kansas. In his later years his son, Roy, was in business with him. The educational matters of the community were of great interest to him, and he served on the school board for a long time. When the local telephone company was organized, he was one of the organizers, and for a long time was its president. The Methodist Episcopal Church enjoyed his participation as an active member and he was a trustee for a long period. Orvan Payson Monroe was prominent in the local political activities and was an active and progressive leader, his contemporaries knew him to stand for fearless and energetic progression. Because of his active life he had a large circle of friends, and he was held in high esteem by them. His loss must have been greatly felt in his community.

In January 1965, the compiler of this genealogy was very fortunate to locate Mr. Monroe's daughter, Mrs. Orin A. Stevens. Mrs. Stevens assisted in furnishing much additional information about the families of her brothers and sisters.

11-86-17-1 GEORGE LORING MUNROE

The obituary in Oneida Dispatch read, "Oneida lost one of its best known and most respected citizens in the passing of George L. Munroe etc." . . . While nothing he did rated being carved in stone he was an outstanding success as a human being with a real zest for living.

He fathered six daughters, I was the first grandson, and thru out my childhood my dad was a traveling salesman, only home week-ends, so Grandpa and his "first boy" spent a lot of time together. What memories! The fashion today is to write of a neurotic childhood, mine was a fantastically happy one.

Summers down at Grandpa's farm at State Bridge where he and I would help "Shep" bring in the cows, hunt hen-hawks at the edge of the woods where I'd set on stump holding a pet crow, sticking my finger in its craw so it would Caw and lure the hawks for grandpa to knock down with his shotgun. Going after frogs at the big pond. Frog leg suppers, weinie roasts. Wild rides in the buggy as grandpa broke in a frisky colt. I have a picture of old farmhouse with its veranda across the front and down both sides of house, with four generations of us on the veranda. . . . Then there would be interurban trolley rides to Utica or Syracuse for ball games, vaudeville, minstrel shows and circuses or a cottage for a week or two at Sylvan Beach on Oneida Lake. Can still see Grandpa at the roller rink there, a few snorts under his vest with the rink all to himself as he put on a show, how he could skate! He also loved music and my Aunt Pearl at the piano, a colored man who worked for grandpa on the guitar and grandpa with the bones were quite a combo. He had a bag of golf clubs that were well used. Never missed a sulky race in the area. Would go to Boston, New York, Buffalo or where ever Sam Langford fought and have a ring-side seat and a bet riding on his "Boston Tar Baby."

In the fall, winter and spring when he lived in Oneida he went for long daily walks with his morning coat, striped trousers and cane, greeting barber, shine-boy, shopkeeper, calling them by name and inquiring about their family. He knew everybody. Also owned quite an extensive library, was well read and vitally interested in world events. An ardent Bull Mooser who could get slightly profane if someone knocked his Teddy Roosevelt.

After he died grandma discovered that for years he had been a contributor to a colored church. He attended their church often. Said they were only people he knew who enjoyed their religion. Whether it was plumbing repairs, roofing, yardwork or what, grandpa would find a colored man to do the job. Guess you could call him an Integrationist ahead of his time . . . According to family legend, the clan was quite disturbed when he bought considerable U.S. Steel stock at 25c a share. He left grandma an estate up in the six figures, which was money in 1918. And I know he left the world a little better than he found it. Would that my grandsons when they reach retirement age recall me as fondly as I do my Grandpa Munroe. He was a Character.

11-86-17-2 CHARLES IVERS MUNROE

The following account about Charles Ivers Munroe is taken from the obituary notice of the Oneida Dispatch, a newspaper of Oneida, N. Y.

"Charles Ivers Munroe died at his home, 48 Broad Street, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning after an illness of nearly two years. He had been confined to the house for about 14 months, and all that medical skill, tender nursing and devoted care could do was constantly done to alleviate his suffering. He was in his 57th year.

Mr. Munroe was born in Cleveland, Oswego county, Aug. 19, 1851, the son of Loring and Jane Munroe. In 1861 the family moved to Dunbarton, Oneida county, where he attended school until he was 14, when he entered the Dunbarton glass foundry, becoming head cutter. Later he became a member of the firm of Munroe and Co., glass manufacturers, who were known all over the United States. About 25 years ago Mr. Munroe came to Oneida and followed the glass business and afterward for three of four years the real estate business until January 1, 1897, when he formed with Seth D. Baldwin the present well known and successful undertaking firm of Baldwin and Munroe.

Nov. 18, 1874, Mr. Munroe married Miss Barbara Miller of State Bridge, who with one son, Dr. C. Fred Munroe of this city, survives him. Another son, Loring Miller Munroe, died 11 years ago aged 22. He also leaves two brothers, George L. and Anthony B. Munroe of Oneida.

Mr. Munroe was universally respected as a man of the highest integrity of character and enjoyed the confidence and friendship of all with whom he came in contact. He was always courteous, warm hearted and a kind generous benefactor, and possessed a genial nature which endeared him to everyone. He enjoyed fishing and hunting and outdoor life generally, and possessed a strong sense of humor. Mr. Munroe was a director in the farmers and Merchants State Bank, a member of the first Presbyterian church, the Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, Knights of Pythias, and the Oneida Chamber of Commerce, and was a trustee of Oneida Chapter, No. 21, Order of the Eastern Star.

The funeral which will be private, will be held at the house at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Rev. George B. Swinnerton officiating. Burial will be made in Glenwood cemetery. Friends will kindly omit flowers."

11-86-17-5 ELLA MUNROE

The following is from an obituary in an Oneida newspaper.

"Death of Miss Ella Munroe—Miss Ella Munroe, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loring Munroe, of this village, died of typhoid fever, on Monday afternoon last, after nearly a month's illness, aged about 23 years. Miss Munroe was a highly accomplished young lady, and her death is severely felt by her parents, who some years since lost two daughters, after brief illness, of scarlet fever. Miss Munroe possessed rare musical talents, and, with her younger brother, who remains at home, was wont to entertain her parents and friends as but comparatively few have power to do. Her death will be deeply regretted by the society of young people in which she moved. The funeral takes place this (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the residence on Broad Street, Rev. S. Jessup officiating, and the remains buried in Glenwood Cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Munroe have three sons living, two of whom reside at Dunbarton, Oneida County."

11-86-17-6 ANTHONY B. MUNROE

The following obituary is from an Oneida newspaper dated 22 June 1936·

"Anthony B. Munroe, 75, banker here for more than half a century and one of the most widely known residents in this section, died suddenly early Sunday morning in his home, 406 Broad Street. He suffered a heart attack Saturday morning.

Entering the banking field while still in his teens, Mr. Munroe was first associated with the Oneida Savings bank. After the death of his father, Loring Munroe, who founded the Farmers and Merchants bank, he became head of that institution until it went out of existence many years ago.

Becoming a stockholder in the Oneida Valley National bank, he was later named a trustee and then president. He held the latter position until he resigned about four years ago to become chairman of the board of directors of the bank, which office he held at his death.

Interested in Civic Welfare

Always interested in the civic welfare of the city, altho never aspiring to any political office, Mr. Munroe was instrumental in bringing about many public improvements and was prime mover for erection of the present nurses home of the Broad Street Hospital.

Active in the affairs of first Presbyterian church, he had been a trustee for 25 years. Born March 13, 1861 at Bernhard's Bay, Oneida Lake, a son of Loring and Jane Munroe, he had resided in this city for about 59 years. For some time he conducted a clothing store in Madison Street, but the major part of his life was spent in banking circles.

Mr. Munroe was a member of Oneida Lodge 767 Elks, and a director of the Oneida Savings Bank as well as many other local organizations.

Married 50 Years

He married the former Louise Walrath of this city who survives. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary about two years ago.

Others surviving are one daughter, Mrs. (Compilers note, she was really "Miss") Marjorie L. Munroe, at home, a son, Stewart Munroe, Sr., of Boston, Mass., and three grandsons, H. Coman, James S., and Stewart Munroe, Jr., all of Boston, and several nieces and nephews.

A private funeral will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at the home, with Rev. Dr. George Brown Swinnerton, pastor emeritus, and Rev. A. David Williams, pastor of First Presbyterian church officiating.

Friends may call from 7 to 9 o'clock Monday night at the home. Burial will be in Glenwood cemetery in charge of Munroe and Dunbar."

11-86-44-2 CHARLES ANDREWS MUNROE

From the Chicago Tribune of Dec. 29, 1957 the following has been taken.

"Chas. Munroe, long utilities official, dies. Began practicing law here in 1897.

Charles A. Munroe, 82, a retired Chicago and New York financier, and public utilities executive, died yesterday in his home in Nassau, Bahama Islands. Of late years he has divided his time between his estates in Nassau and the French Riviera. Funeral services and burial will be in Middlebury, Vt., Saturday.

Mr. Munroe began his business career in Chicago in 1897 as a lawyer, after graduation from Middlebury College in his home town, and from Northwestern University law school.

He became identified with water power development along the Des Plaines river in 1902, and was an executive of the Illinois Valley Gas and Electric Company.

Peoples Gas Executive

From 1919 to 1924 he was vice president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company, and also a vice president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. During this time he was president of the American Gas Association.

In 1924 Mr. Munroe acquired control of the Laclede Gas Light Company of St. Louis and was its chairman until 1927. He later became president of the W. A. Harriman Securities Corporation, Northern Utilities Company, North Central Gas Company, and Columbia Oil and Gasoline Company. He was a director and executive committee member of Columbia Gas and Electric Company.

Rail and Bank Director

He has also been a director of the Illinois Central Railroad, Yazoo and Mississippi Railroad, the Chicago, St. Louis, and New Orleans Railroad Company, American National Bank in Winter Haven, Florida, and Broadway National Bank in Tampa, Florida.

He was a trustee of Middlebury college and formerly was a trustee of the Chicago Historical Society. He gave Buildings to Middlebury and also to the Choate School, Wallingford, Conn.

His first wife Rhea Logan died in 1933. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ann Ditchburn Munroe; two daughters by his first marriage, Mrs. Lawrence D. Elliman and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd, and six grandchildren."

13-41-22-1 GEORGE THOMAS MONRO

When only nine years of age his mother placed him under the care of Captain Norris of Bristol, R. I. (probably of kin) to go to sea as a cabin boy for discipline. At age 19 he was captain of his own ship. On marrying his wife she persuaded him to give up the sea. He studied medicine of the Hahneman method and supposedly began practice but a directory of Brooklyn, N. Y. 1849-1850 lists him as a "Painter." By 1855 he had moved to Greenport, L. I. where he did practice medicine successfully, but also taught navigation although in a census report of 1860 he listed himself as a "Mariner." He also used the spelling MONRO but in later years may have added the "e." When his wife was burned to death from the explosion of a lamp he soon moved to Penna., to join his kin but took the four younger children, George, Hezakiah Usher, Emily E. and Clara M., to Bristol, R. I. The youngest, Joseph H. was adopted by people named Jackson in Greenport. He later married in Penna.

13-41-28-1 GEORGE PETER MONRO

George Peter Monro, farmer and postmaster was born in what is now North Towanda Township, Bradford County, son of Peter and Lavinia (Pettibone) Monro, natives of Bristol, R. I. and Bennington, Vermont. George's paternal grandfather, Thomas Monro (13-41-2), settled in Columbia Township, Penna., in 1823, and partially cleared the farm now owned by the heirs of Henry Card (13-41-21), and died there. Thomas Monro's wife (13-41-2) was Sybil Borden, by whom he had 12 children, all of whom grew to maturity.

George Peter Monro was reared in Columbia Township; he received an elementary school education. He was with his father in the store they operated in Sylvania for twenty-seven years, and during this same period he was Postmaster, having been appointed 8 May 1858. After resigning as postmaster on 1 Oct. 1885, he engaged in farming.

Mr. Monro was a member of the Universalist Church, a charter member of Sylvania Lodge, No. 926 I.O.O.F. In politics he was a Republican, and in 1860 was appointed assessor of the U. S. Internal Revenue, a position he held for two years.

15-21-34-1 RALPH MIDDLETON MUNROE

Since early youth Ralph M. Munroe had a great interest in the sea. In 1847 he helped a friend, William Andrews, to develop a wood carving machine and after about one year the friend threw in the sponge and told Mr. Munroe to help himself to what tools he wanted, in lieu of better pay. During this episode he also worked in his spare time with two German machinists named Newman. They were experts in developing and perfecting intricate patterns; so Ralph M. Munroe gained much knowledge from these men.

In 1875 Ralph M. Munroe became engaged in a business venture with the Elmira Seamless Keg Company, whereby only one keg of each size could come from one log, upon this problem the venture came to grief.

Shortly after the beginning of the Civil War Mr. Munroe went to Boarding School, at the Eagleswood Military Academy. This school was situated about a mile and a half west of Perth Amboy on the Raritan River. Before going to this school he visited his grandfather in Concord, Mass., and visited the old pencil shop of William Munroe which was still in operation, (See family no. 15-21-3) also during this visit he met the daughter of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Ellen, she was credited with bringing into this country a new game, croquet, from England. In Concord he also became acquainted with the Alcotts, Frank Sanborn, the Barretts, William W. Weildon, Horace Mann, the Hosmers and others. Across the way from his grandfather lived Judge Rockwood Hoar who later became Attorney-General under Grant.

When Staten Island became his father and mother's permanent home he was sent to a second school. A private school on New York Avenue, opposite St. John's Church, run by Isaac Holden.

In 1888 Mr. Munroe became a permanent resident of Cocoanut Grove, Florida. He was one of the early settlers of this place, and lived there until his death.

From Nov. 1889 to June 1891 he tried various experiments at sponge culture and tried to have a bill introduced into the State Legislature to have a small area reserved for experiments, set aside by state law. Politics played havoc with this worth while idea and the outcome was that the bill was thrown out.

Ralph M. Munroe was well known for his superior skill at designing sail boats, he designed and built many boats for his friends and many well known people of his day. He was the originator of the Sharpie, a sail boat.

For many other interesting facts about Ralph Middleton Munroe one can read his book, "The Commodore's Story" printed in 1930, Munroe and Gilpin.

1/12-35-10/6-1 ARTHUR MONROE

Arthur Monroe, lawyer and judge was educated in his preliminary education at Spencer High School, he graduated from Amherst College A.B. in 1897, he next took a two year law course at Harvard University during 1897-99. He received his M.A. degree in 1911 in history and international law, from Clark College at Worcester, Mass. He was interim professor of international law at Clark College in the early 1900's. After he completed his studies at Harvard, he returned to Spencer, Mass. and worked in the law office of Albert W. Curtis, a judge, working in this office until admitted to the Mass. Bar in 1900. In the latter part of the year 1900 he commenced his own law practice in Worcester, and two years later opened another office in Spencer. In 1937 he decided to close the office in Worcester. In 1927 the governor of Mass., Alvan Fuller, appointed Judge Monroe special justice of the District Court of Western Worcester. He kept this appointment until 1942 and resigned to resume his private practice in Spencer, which he maintained until his death. He was treasurer of the Taylor Woolen Co., of Spencer from 1905-07 and also of the Wicks Manufacturing Co., of Spencer during 1906-07. Another Spencer Co., of which he was president from 1906-08 was the Priscilla Mills Co.

Judge Arthur Monroe was a Republican, chairman of the Spencer Republican Committee during the early 1900's. Serving on Spencer town council from 1927 to 1951, in 1951 he asked not to be reappointed. An active member of the sinking fund committee for many years, and up to the time of his death was a member of the town finance committee. During the Second World War he was chairman of the district advisory board under the Selective Service System. About 1912 he was the first president of the Spencer Farmers and Mechanics Association, which conducted the Spencer Fair, continuing to head the association for two years. He was once active in the Spencer Board of Trade, a commissioner of the Drury Fund.

He was a member of the Spencer Methodist Church, served as a trustee and legal advisor and member of the building committee for the new church dedicated in 1955. Also, he was a member of the Worcester County Bar Association, the Knights of Pythias, Grange, and the Delta Upsilon fraternity. His special interests were gardening and bird lore.

Dr. Orin A. Stevens, a distinguished scientist in the fields of botany, entomology and ornithology, retired in 1956. He removed from Kansas to North Dakota in 1909 where he was employed at the North Dakota Agricultural College as a seed analyst and botanist.

He holds the titles of Botanist Emeritus and curator for the North Dakota Institute for Regional Studies. Dr. Stevens is still at his work even though retired, caring for the extensive herbarium of the Dept. of Botany, which he developed. He answers voluminous correspondence with people in N. D. and from all over the world on scientific subjects within the broad field of his knowledge.

A handbook, first published by Dr. Stevens in 1950, has gone into several printings, his collection of over 10,000 specimens of bees and wasps, most of which were taken in N. D., is in the American Museum of Natural History in New York City. Dr. Stevens is a world authority on the Hymenoptera, the order to which these insects belong, and about a dozen species have been named in his honor.

He has published hundreds of scientific papers in the fields of his major interests, including historical papers on early plant explorers. His former students from all over the world still keep in touch with him. . . .

His wisdom and knowledge are freely given by him whenever called upon, in the best tradition of a true scientist.

11-86-17-22 DR. CHARLES FREDERICK MUNROE

Charles Frederick Munroe was a Dentist and Funeral Director, he and his family resided at Oneida, N. Y., he attended the University of Buffalo, N. Y.

He loved both hunting and fishing and at one time was considered one of the best fishermen on Oneida Lake. Rain or shine he would be on the lake at daybreak and back on shore about 9:30 a.m. only to repeat the process again at 4:00 p.m. until dusk. His daughter, Barbara (Family no. 11-86-17-22-2), who furnished this account in November 1965, says "I can still remember meeting him at the shore with a dishpan, which he would fill to the brim."

Dr. Munroe belonged to many organizations, but never went to the meetings. He went to bed too early to attend the meetings. One of his greatest pleasures was to go to the movies at every change.

A most generous man, his word was as good as his bond. He helped many people along the way in life, but this was kept to himself, an excellent Mortician yet he loathed to practice it, which probably explained some of his nervousness and short temper. He must have felt trapped in this business, for he had given his word to his dying father that he would continue the business, which he did.

11-86-17-61 MARJORIE LOUISE MUNROE

The following account was taken from the Oneida Daily Dispatch of Friday, Feb. 1, 1963. This account gives us a very vivid picture of Mrs. Munroe.

The account starts with this statement by Mrs. Munroe, "I love Oneida. I can't think of any place else I would rather be. This is my town and I guess I feel sort of responsible for it." The article then goes on, "And Mrs. Marjorie L. Munroe, the great-granddaughter of the first settler of Oneida, James Stewart, has proven in her lifetime that these are the words by which she has lived.

Mrs. Munroe, in her mid-70s, broke her hip and severely injured one foot last year. Since then, she has been confined to her huge four-poster bed in her home, getting around only with the aid of a walker.

But while she may be confined physically, her wide-spread interests and activities continue as usual. A telephone sits by her hand and rings constantly.

The bed itself is covered with books, magazines and newspapers. If there is a meeting she should attend, the other members of the group come to her home and the meeting is held in her bedroom.

She was born in Oneida the daughter of Anthony B. and Louise Walrath Munroe, both native to Oneida. Mrs. Munroe was educated in Oneida and then attended National Park Seminary in Forest Glen, Maryland. After that she took up singing and, among others, studied with Herbert Witherspoon, head of the Metropolitan Opera Company. A dramatic soprano, she gave concerts in Kenwood, Utica and Syracuse.

During World War I, she was instrumental in establishing a chapter of the American Red Cross in Madison County. Mrs. Merchant B. Hall, now living in Florida, and Mrs. Munroe are the only two living members of the original founders of this chapter.

Also during World War I, she started in on her pet project—the establishment of a library in Oneida. Before a library was even built, she was passing the hat at meetings and at one meeting of the Women's Civic Club, she collected the sum of seven dollars, she reports.

When the new Hand-Barker Library was completed, she says that she felt that she had done one real thing in her life. As administrator of the money left by Mrs. Elizabeth Barr for the construction of the library and for an endowment fund, she spent many hours working on this. Mrs. Barr was born in Oneida, the daughter of Theodore Hand.

During World War II, Mrs. Munroe was the head of the Women's Volunteer Service with an office in the Post Office building. She also served on the rent control board and was chairman of book collections for the U.S.O. She personally delivered hundreds of books to the headquarters in Syracuse. Somehow she found time to take jigsaw puzzles down to the railroad station to distribute to soldiers on trains passing through Oneida.

While she never participated in Girl Scouts, she was always interested in the organization. Several years ago, she donated the house next to her home to the Madison County Girl Scout Council for the use of Oneida Girl Scouts and as a business office for the council.

Mrs. Munroe is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, the Art Club, the Progress Club, a trustee of the Oneida Library and of the Sylvan Springs Water Co. She is a former member of the Morning Musical, the junior board of the Old Ladies Home and the City Federation of Women's Clubs.

She is constructive in more ways than civic projects. Liking to make things with her hands, her hobbies are flowers and embroidery, she can't say which order. After a visit to her home, it would seem that the former has preference. Her house is full of flowers, real ones in each room and every windowsill full of African Violets, and flowered wallpaper in all bedrooms.

She also colects buttons, old lace, shawls and fans. She says she doesn't have much of a collection as yet but at least has made a start.

A great reader, she has what she calls, "lying down books" and "sitting up books." The former are mainly mysteries where the action is fast and her attention is taken off herself. In the "sitting up" category, she might be found reading anything—from history to biography to the latest best seller.

An outspoken authority on the early history of Oneida and Madison Counties, she is in dispute with several of the local "historians" on certain facts. Among other contentions, she claims to be the only one who knows the exact location of the Council house of the six nations, since her grandmother was born in it.

An odd paradox she has concerns color. She loves it and her house is full of it. But a color or shade that she can wear, and often does, she will not tolerate in her home as she can't live with it.

Since her accident, she has had a bird feeding station built in her back yard and part of her daily exercise is to go down the hall with her walker and watch the birds. She says she can identify only about five species but, with her curiosity, it probably won't be long before she is an authority on all kinds.

Mrs. Munroe has a great compassion for people but no tolerance for insincerity or dishonesty. By her own admission, she would never hurt anyone unless they were doing something dishonest.

While, like everyone else, she must have made some compromises in her life, it is hard to imagine. She is a blunt forthright person of great sincerity and honesty. Anyone who manages to achieve what she has, must be controversial. But, with her or against her, like her or not, her accomplishments command the admiration of everyone.

In 1950, she was one of the "Roses to the Living" recipients of the Oneida Rotary Club. Her citation read:

"In recognition of a life of outstanding achievement which was inspired by a fine sense of duty, coupled with a genuine desire to render helpful assistance and to promote the best interests of your community, Oneida Rotary Club salutes you as one who has exemplified the virtue of service above self in all your contacts and activities. May the Rose of Rotary presented to you to-day encourage you to render the same full measure of service in the years to come."

Certainly, no one will deny that she has rendered "full measure" in the twelve years since that award.

The compiler of this genealogy and his wife, Marjorie Munroe, had the pleasure of spending an overnight visit with Mrs. Marjorie L. Munroe on 8 July 1964. I can certainly vouch that the above account of Mrs. Munroe is very true. A lot of the information from her grandfather, Loring Munroe, to the present day was supplied by her.

Although the above account speaks of her as Mrs. Marjorie Munroe, we must remember, that she was born Marjorie Louise Munroe, and after her divorce, she was and has been known as Mrs. Munroe.

11-86-17-62 STEWART WALRATH MUNROE

The following write up from a Syracuse, N. Y. newspaper gives the reader a little biography about Mr. Munroe.

"S. W. Munroe, Auto Sales Chief, in City"
"Chrysler Official, Oneida Native, Attending District Parley"

"Stewart Walrath Munroe of Detroit, Mich., general sales manager of the Chrysler division of the Chrysler Corporation, and a native of Oneida, was in Syracuse to-day to attend a district sales meeting of his firm.

Mr. Munroe, whose appointment as general sales manager on Nov. 15 climaxed a long career in the automotive industry, attended grade and high school in Oneida before entering an automobile school in Detroit.

He is a son of the late A. B. Munroe (family no. 11-86-17-6), for many years president of the Farmers & Merchants Bank of Oneida, and later chairman of the board of directors of the Oneida Valley National Bank and Mrs. Munroe, who lives in Oneida with her daughter, Miss Marjorie Munroe (family no. 11-86-17-61).

Mr. Munroe has been interested in the mechanics of automobiles nearly all his life. It is said that as a youngster he took apart his father's first "horseless carriage" and put it together again, the car operating better afterward. (Compiler's note: this statement was also furnished by his sister Marjorie).

He married the former Harriet Coman, daughter of the former State Supreme Court Justice, Henry Coman of Oneida. The couple have three children, Henry Coman, James Stewart, and Stewart Walrath."

* * * *

The above account must have appeared sometime after 1936, as it speaks of Mr. Munroe's father as the late A. B. Munroe. Mr. A. B. Munroe died in 1936. Stewart Walrath Munroe attended Philips Andover Jr. College in 1909.

11-10/5-63-12 ROBERT CLIFFORD MUNROE

Robert Clifford Munroe began his long association with the G. and C. Merriam Company during the fall of 1898, starting in the shipping room, stuffing circulars into envelopes. In 1904 he became advertising manager and started traveling extensively for the company. Covering all parts of the country for many years, he made personal contact with the book trade. Elected to the board of directors in 1919, in 1922 he became clerk of the corporation, finally he became its president in 1934. During his long association with G. and C. Merriam the famous unabridged Merriam-Webster dictionary grew from a publication of 175,000 entries at the turn of the century to the current edition containing over 600,000.

He played an important part in the preparation and sale of successive editions of Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, and, several years ago, guided the successful launching of Webster's Dictionary of Synonyms and Webster's Biographical Dictionary, both of which became best sellers in their fields. In 1940 one of his fondest dreams came true, when the company moved into its new office building at 47 Federal Street, Springfield, Mass. Mr. Munroe was chairman of the building committee.

A hobby of Mr. Munroe was stamp collecting and he was a prominent figure in the philatelic world. Another hobby was drawing or pencil sketching, at which he had a natural talent, the compiler of this genealogy is fortunate to possess five of the sketches. He served as a member of the board of vice-presidents for the American Philatelic Society and was honored, in 1948, by being selected as a member of the jury of awards for the International Philatelic Exhibition in New York. Collecting Indian arrow heads was one of his early hobbies and some of this collection is now in the possession of his daughter, Ann Morton Munroe. Aside from being president of the Merriam Company, he was president of the H. R. Hunting Company, library binders and was a director of numerous business, civic, historical, and educational institutions in Springfield and suburban Longmeadow.

He graduated from Central High School, Springfield, Mass., and was a native of Holyoke, Mass.

Mr. Munroe's funeral service was conducted at the South Congregational Church, of Springfield, on Saturday, 17 January 1959 at 2:00 p.m. and he was buried in the Longmeadow Cemetery.

He is well remembered with an outstanding record of school leadership in scholastic and athletic achievement. He was a debater, football and baseball captain and Cadet Officer.

He became Assistant Attorney for the Denver Board of Education in 1897. At the death of the Honorable William B. Tebbetts in 1904, he was appointed Attorney, in which capacity he served until 1932.

For a period of 35 years, which covered the time of the incorporating of the City and County of Denver, with the separation from Arapahoe County, forming and enlarging the present School District No. 1, Mr. Munroe was an important link of continuity between the administrations of a number of successive Boards and Superintendents. It was his hope to see future high schools located next to the city parks. When the new West, East, and South High Schools were built adjacent to city parks, it was understood that this had resulted from his urging and planning.

Herbert M. Munroe gave his time to the problems of underprivileged boys, orphans and members of minority groups. Active in many youth-building organizations, including the Old Timers Baseball Association, the Big Brother Movement, the Y.M.C.A., and patriotic speaking and essay contests of the Sons of the American Revolution. He died on 22 Feb. 1950, while serving as Referee for the Colorado State Industrial Commission, highly regarded and respected in that position.

1/12-35-10/3-11 HENRY STONE MONROE

A submariner, Henry Stone Monroe participated in twelve war patrols during World War II, and for his outstanding service during the war was awarded two Silver Star Medals, the Navy and Marine Corps Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V", and the Army Distinguished Unit Badge.

Born in Somerville, Mass., he graduated from the Naval Academy with the Class of 1933 and subsequently served, 1934-1937, on the battleship Tennessee and the destroyers Lea and Reuben James. Completing submarine training in 1938, he joined the USS Tarpon. In Nov. 1941, a month prior to the United States' entry into World War II, he joined the USS Permit to serve as First Lieutenant and Executive Officer on six war patrols. He next commanded the USS S-35, 1942-1943 during four war patrols, and in Dec. transferred to command of the newly-commissioned submarine Ronquil. After a period of shakedown and trials he commanded her for two successful patrols.

He was attached to the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, between 1945 and 1947, after which, for a year, he served as Operations Officer on the Staff of Commander Submarine Squadron TWO. From June 1948 until June 1949 he was Commander Submarine Division Twenty-One and following a tour of duty as Assistant Officer in Charge of the Submarine School, New London, Conn., reported in Feb. 1952, for instruction at the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Virginia.

In July 1952 he assumed command of the attack cargo ship Warrick, which operated in the Korean area of hostilities, and in Oct. 1953 became Assistant Director for Production in the Material Division of the Bureau of Ordnance. In that assignment he was a student for three months (advanced management program) at Harvard University. He next served as Chief of Staff to Commander Cruiser Division ONE and in Oct. 1957 he became Commanding Officer of the Naval Underwater Ordnance Station, Newport, Rhode Island. In Oct. 1959 he became Commander Service Squadron SIX (Commander Service Force, Sixth Fleet), and in Nov. 1960 reported as Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander Sixth Fleet. His selection for the rank of Rear Admiral was approved by the President on 14 July 1961.

In April 1962 he became Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Naval Reserve), Navy Department and served as such until ordered detached in Aug. 1964 for duty as Commander Amphibious Training Command, Pacific Fleet.

In May 1943 Lieutenant Commander Henry Stone Monroe received the Navy Cross for heroic action in saving his submarine and crew during a fire that raged on board for three days. He brought his ship and crew home safely although himself disabled.

1/12-41-10/2-14 ANNABEL (MORGAN) HONEYWELL

Annabel Morgan was born at 11:45 p.m. on 31 Dec. 1887, in the Thaddeus Munroe House on the east side of Munroe Hill in the part of Hillsborough known as Concord End, see family no. 1/12-41. The bricks for this house are said to have been made on the premises soon after Mr. Munroe's discharge from the Continental Army. The farm is now owned by George Edwards.

Annabel attended the local school and the Hillsboro High School, where she graduated as valedictorian in 1905. She hoped to attend college, but family circumstances would not permit. After a year of teaching in a public school, she enrolled in the nurse-training school of Wesson Memorial Hospital, Springfield, Mass., and graduated in 1909. While living in Wellesley, Mass., she took courses at Boston University. In 1963 she took especial satisfaction in establishing a trust fund in Hillsborough in memory of Dr. and Mrs. B. D. Peaslee to aid needy graduates of her old school to go to college.

Until 1922 she did private nursing or served the Good Cheer Society of Nashua, New Hampshire, making her home in the city until 1916, afterward in Hudson, N. H. On 19 April 1922, she was married to Roy J. Honeywell at Hudson. Except for brief intervals elsewhere, they made their home in Wellesley, Mass., Winsted, Conn., and Bethesda, Maryland. Annabel died at Bethesda and interment was in Plot No. 2 of the Arlington National Cemetery.

14-19-32-21-3 WARREN MUNROE FISKE

He attended Tufts College Engineering School and was a brilliant student, president of his class for three or four years and manager of the baseball team. As an engineer he worked in and around Sao Paulo, Brazil, for The Brazilian Traction Co., their main office Toronto, Canada.

He served in World War I and here follows a copy of an affidavit about his war service.

"State of Texas
County of Dallas:

On or about the 7th day of November, 1918—the exact date at this time having slipped my memory—"E" Battery of the 314th Field Artillery, under command Captain Warren M. Fiske (then Lieutenant Fiske) was in position in the woods just in the rear of the crest overlooking the Meuse River and the towns of Meuzay, Sassey and Milly.

About dusk on the day in question Captain Fiske was at the observation post right on the edge of the before mentioned crest, and observed a German Battery in action across the Meuse River. This enemy battery was firing for destruction at a rapid rate of fire.

Captain Fiske immediately called the undersigned, who was the executive officer at the battery position and ordered fire to be opened on the enemy battery; giving his commands by the usual methods contained in the United States Field Artillery regulations. After three salvos of adjustment Captain Fiske reported that the target had been hit and for the battery to take up the continuous fire of destruction under the corrections given in the last order by him. This was done and probably thirty rounds were fired in accordance with his orders. The order was then received to cease firing and relay an S.O.S.

I did not see the effect of this firing but Sergeant Wolfe, Chief of the first gun section made a trip on November 12th, to the position of the enemy battery and reported to me that, as a result of our firing two pieces of the German battery had been destroyed and that numerous dead German soldiers and horses were still at the position. He also stated that the evidence showed that the two remaining pieces of German battery had made a very hasty exit from their position, leaving behind many articles of equipment of both men and guns.

Captain Fiske's orders were clear and decisive and the results obtained were evidently quite destructive. As a result of this fire "E" Battery received a few shots of counter fire and then our position was unmolested for a day.

Joseph W. Baily Jr.
First Lieutanant
Executive officer
Battery "E", 314th Field Artillery

Sworn to and subscribed before me on this 31st day of March A.D. 1921.

Winifred Coulson
Notary Public, Dallas County, Texas."

Mr. Fiske also received the Silver Star Citation, a copy of the letter for this follows:

1/12-41 THADDEUS MUNROE

During the American Revolution he served in Captain Hale's company, Colonel Gerrish's regiment which joined the Northern Continental army in Sept. 1777. In the returns his name was given as Rowe. He was also in the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Thaddeus Munroe was among the early settlers of Hillsborough, N. H. arriving there shortly after the Battle of Lexington, Mass. His house which he built must have been erected between 1775 and 1781. It is a fine two story structure, built of red bricks which were cast on the property. This house is still standing in 1966 and in good condition and occupied by Mr. George Edwards and his wife, Mrs. Edwards was born in it. The compiler of this genealogy visited Mr. Edwards on 11 June 1966 along with Mrs. Orin A. Stevens of Fargo, N. D. (Family no. 1/12-41-10/8-7) and the Rev. Roy J. Honeywell (Family no. 1/12-41-10/2-14).

Milton David Ray (Family no. 1/12-41-51-44), states in July 1966 that the brick part of the house spoken of above, was definitely built by Hiram Monroe (Family no. 1/12-41-10/) the son of Thaddeus. The wooden part seems to be a part of the house Thaddeus built, and there are traces of an ell which probably was removed when the brick structure was erected.

The Rev. Roy J. Honeywell (Family no. 1/12-41-10/2-14) muses as follows. "Thaddeus had been in Hillsborough about three years when he married Hannah on her 19th birthday and can scarcely have cleared much more of his farm than would yield fundamental crops nor built more of a house than a simple wooden structure which could be enlarged. Tax lists show him paying a medium tax or less, but that brick house in those early times would have put the owner in the wealthy group. Hiram might have qualified after he was established in business and politics, but I doubt if Thaddeus ever would. Years ago I read some tax lists (whether school or church I am not sure) which assessed Thaddeus a definitely small tax but Hiram several times as much as was charged his father. This makes me think Milton is right."

It has been written that Thaddeus Munroe was tall, broad-shouldered, stern and firm as the rock-ribbed hills of Concord End, Hillsborough, N. H. He was a man of few words and could always be counted on where a good man was needed. He was one of the leading politicians of the town.

Besides being a farmer he was also noted as a good bridge builder. These bridges were built of stone, dry construction, arched and earth filled, some of which are still in use to-day.

When he was 71 years old he was invited, with twenty-one others, all who served in the Revolution, to the home of Benjamin Pierce on 26 Dec. 1825, this was Benjamin Pierce's sixty-seventh birthday.

13-34-54-3 JAMES PHINNEY MUNROE

In 1900, James Phinney Munroe wrote an eighty page book called, A Sketch of the Munro Clan, also of William Munro who, deported from Scotland, settled in Lexington, Mass., and of some of his Posterity. He also assisted Alexander MacKenzie in Mr. MacKenzie's book, History of the Munros of Fowlis: his assistance to Mr. MacKenzie's book was supplying him with information about the Lexington, Mass., Munroes. MacKenzie's book deals in the most part with the Munros of Scotland.

In the preface of James Phinney Munroe's Sketch of the Munro Clan, he says, "Learning that this (MacKenzie's History of the Munros of Fowlis) History of the Munros was in preparation, I entered into correspondence with Mr. MacKenzie, and was so far fortunate as to induce him to include in his genealogy as many of the American branches of the Munro Clan as the limited time before publication would permit us to follow up." Mr. MacKenzie's, History of the Munros of Fowlis was published in 1898 at Inverness, Scotland.
